MOTHER TO JOIN LINDY

FLYER WILL REMAIN OVER CHRISTMAS TO VISIT WITH MOTHER

Panama Canal Zone
Plans Welcome For Famous Ace

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 17.—With his mother coming down to visit him over Christmas, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today looked forward to a doubly joyful stay at the Mexican capital.

The flying colonel learned of his mother's decision in a long distance telephone conversation with her yesterday. Mrs. Lindbergh had previously declined to visit her son.

After the holidays are over, America's flying ambassador of good-will will continue on his tour of the Central American countries, the inhabitants of which are already planning to do him great honors when he arrives.

For a time it appeared that Lindbergh would be drawn into a controversy concerning bull-fights, but today all doubt in the question was dispelled by the young man himself. He has been invited to attend a bull-fight tomorrow. Telegrams from organizations in the United States have urged him not to attend.

But Lindbergh, feeling that he is the sole judge in such matters, has let it be known that he will attend. According to the flyer himself, this happens to be a case of doing in Rome as the Romans do. Besides he said:

"I believe that Mexicans are perfectly capable of selecting their own sports."

Col. Lindbergh was elated today over his flight late yesterday over Mexico City in a Mexican Army plane. And Mexican Army pilots were still talking of his remarkable skill at handling a plane. Once aloft, Lindbergh cavorted in perfect aerial acrobatic style, zooming and looping about in the city while critical observers below were loud in their praises.

PANAMA, Canal Zone, Dec. 17.—The city of Panama in particular and the entire Canal Zone in general were enthusiastically today when it was announced definitely that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh would "drop in" for a visit.

The residents were most enthusiastic, making inquiries at newspaper offices and government buildings as to the exact date of the flyer's arrival.

A tremendous reception is planned, as Col. Lindbergh is one of Panama's two popular American heroes. The other is Jack Dempsey.

A general holiday for the thirteen thousand canal employees will not be declared, it was explained, because vessels passing through must be accommodated, but as many as possible in Panama may be given a few hours off to welcome the flyer.

Lindbergh's landing place will be determined today, it was announced by Horacio Alfaro, Panama's secretary of foreign relations. It was expected that the army flying field on the Atlantic side of the canal would be designated.

PUT FREE LANCERS ON SIX-DAY BASIS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 17.—Film actors, who free lance in the studios, will be paid on a six-day week basis and hereafter can not be discharged without specific reason, if the new standard is put into effect by the producers. The contract has been approved by the actors branch of the academy of motion picture arts and sciences and the producers' branch.

The academy's directors are expected to put the new agreement into force January 1.

WEATHER HOLDS UP ENDURANCE FLIGHT

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Dec. 17.—Winds and bad weather this morning still kept the "Pride of Detroit" from taking off on its endurance flight.

T. H. Kinkade, in charge of the monoplane, tested the wind shortly after daybreak and found it unfavorable. Kinkade said the airplane could not take off heavily burdened with a westerly wind. Edward F. Schle and William S. Brock, world fliers who will pilot the plane on its first flight, say they will take off at the first opportunity when the wind shifts.

CHARGES OF MORAL TURPITUDE VOTED AGAINST GOVERNOR JOHNSTON OF OKLAHOMA ON FRIDAY

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Dec. 17.—Governor Henry S. Johnston today maintained the same unperturbed calm which he has held for weeks although the house committee appointed to investigate state officials last night voted charges against him of moral turpitude.

"I have nothing to fear from the character assassins: I regard it as nothing. I am sorry that innocent people have been drawn into this controversy but I do not contemplate any further extension of the power of the militia," Gov. Johnston said.

"It is regrettable that such happens, but I have nothing to fear as my character is clean."

The governor shortly after midnight dispelled rumors which were prevalent in the early hours that he would extend his proclamation requiring troops to stop any meeting of the house investigating committee anywhere.

The probers adjourned early in the evening with the expectation of the arrival of troops to stop any meeting of the house investigating committee anywhere.

Governor Johnston, following a conference with attorneys which lasted until after midnight, announced that he would issue a statement soon regarding his future action, he would not indicate that this might be further than to say that it wouldn't be a proclamation of martial law.

EFFORT TO ABOLISH AIRPLANE EMBARGO TO MEXICO STARTED

Woman Solon Starts Congress Drive To Lift Bars

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The triumphant air voyage of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to Mexico City was signalized here today by the opening of a congressional move to abolish the embargo on shipment of airplanes to Mexico.

Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, Republican congresswoman from Massachusetts, began the campaign with an appeal to the state department.

The proposal is backed by the United States Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce and many other organizations, she said.

While the United States has erected an embargo wall at the Rio Grande on the theory that exportation of airplanes would aid revolutionists, European aircraft factories have been seizing Mexican business, she said. The possibilities of establishing air passenger and freight routes through Mexico to Central and South America is added argument for a change in the policy of the state department, she asserted.

"Col. Lindbergh's successful flight to Mexico City suggests that all embarrassing restrictions such as the present prohibition against American airplanes crossing the border be removed by the state department," said Mrs. Rogers.

"Our aircraft factories are losing business to European competitors as a result of this embargo. The Diario official of Mexico City recently recorded an order for $265,000 worth of planes in England and a Mexican aviation commission sailed on September 11 to Europe for the purpose of studying European planes and engines."

The department of commerce, it is understood, has given encouragement to the proposal, but is powerless to act in the face of the state department embargo.

Despite many rumors that the government was ready to lift the embargo on firearms and munitions as well as airplanes, the state department has taken no action to this end.

TO PUSH AMENDMENT TO CHANGE SESSION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Determined that a constitutional amendment to abolish "lame duck" sessions of congress shall get a hearing in the present session, the house committee on elections of the president and congress today announced plans to report a bill to the house before the Christmas holidays.

Rev. White, (R) of Kansas, chairman, said the committee had endorsed the principle of the measure and would hold a hearing on Monday, after which a bill probably would be reported.

Five resolutions will be before the committee, which is expected to endorse White's measure amending the constitution to provide for inauguration of the president on January 26 instead of March 4, and the convening of congress every year on January 4 instead of the first week in December.

AWARD CONTRACT FOR NEW VIADUCT

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 17.—Construction of Cincinnati's new two million dollar viaduct on the Atlantic and Pacific Highway was awarded to the Folwell Ahlberg Construction Company of Chicago, Ill., according to an announcement made at the state highway department here today.

The company's bid was $1,851,828. It is to be built on U. S. R. 52, just at the city corporation limits, according to the announcement.

NATIONS WOULD JOIN ATTEMPT TO STAMP OUT TRAFFIC IN DRUGS

Increase in Narcotic Smuggling Alarms Government—Think Agreements Would Help Check Law-Breaking.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Negotiations are in progress between the United States and a number of other governments in an effort to draft a practical agreement for suppression of the rapidly increasing international narcotic traffic, it was learned today. Smuggling of narcotics continued on a large scale and there are no indications of a decrease in the illegal supply unless drastic steps are taken to check the traffic, according to treasury officials.

Agreements among the governments of United States, England, France, Germany, Cuba, and possibly others, similar to the informal rum pact with Great Britain, may be the outcome of the negotiations resulting in a general campaign against dope peddlers and smugglers.

Without an international concerted effort there appears to be little prospect of wiping out one of the most vicious traffics of the underworld, officials said.

Plans to combat the evil are being drawn up in the foreign control unit of the treasury, headed by Harry F. Anslinger, who was instrumental in bringing about an agreement whereby the smuggling situation between the Bahamas and Florida has been placed under better control.

Col. G. Nutt, head of the narcotic unit, said that smuggling conditions at the close of the year are little changed from the situation six months ago. Smuggled dope, principally from Europe, is brought in on most of the ocean liners, most of it passing through

BANK BANDITS GET $15,500

STOCKTON, Calif., Dec. 17.—Authorities today sought two youthful bandits who forced officials of the state bank of Escalon, near here, to lay face downward on the vault floor, while they looted the safe of $15,500, strolled out to the street, and escaped in an automobile.

J. S. Garberson, cashier and Miss Ether Huleen, assistant cashier, were alone in the bank when the two men appeared.

BOYS REMOVED FROM BURNING BUILDING WITHOUT INJURIES

Children Rescued From First Blaze Again
Saved

QUEBEC, Dec. 17.—The St. John Berchman boarding school was a mass of ruins today, the second educational institution to be razed by fire here in the last forty-eight hours. There were 142 boys asleep in the boarding school when the fire started in the basement last night, but all of them were on the first floor of the building and escaped uninjured.

With the terrible disaster at the Hospice St. Charles Wednesday night still fresh in their minds, 300 men besieged the boarding house when the fire started, breaking windows and fighting to gain admittance in order to rescue the youngsters. The men in charge of the school led the boys to safety in an orderly manner, however, and no one was injured.

The boys, all between the ages of five and twelve, were still in their night attire when taken out of the school. They were housed in a nearby building.

The school was controlled by the Good Shepherd sisters who had charge of the Hospice St. Charles, an orphan asylum, was burned to the ground on Wednesday night.

A sixty-mile gale increased the danger in last night's fire. The boarding school was in ruins by midnight.

In a building opposite the school were housed more than 200 children who had been saved from Wednesday night's fire. This building burst into flames at eleven o'clock, but the children were removed in time by devoted sisters of the Good Shepherd.

M'ADOO SUGGESTS LOS ANGELES MEET

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 17.—Reiterating that he was definitely out of politics, William Gibbs McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury and twice aspirant for the Democratic presidential nomination, today voiced his choice of Los Angeles for the 1928 Democratic national convention.

"Just reaffirm the statement in my open letter of last September in which I definitely took myself out of politics," he told newspaper men. "Say that I do not care to discuss the political situation in any way, either national or state, either Democratic or Republican. I am out of politics and looking after my law business."

STRIKING MINERS MUST LEAVE HOMES

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 17.—All unemployed union miners and families of miners employed by the Clarkson Coal Mining Company and the Atlantic Contracting Company in Belmont County, except those at Clarkson Mine No. 2, must vacate the premises of the companies by April 1, according to a decision handed down here today by Federal Judge Benson W. Hough. A hundred miners and their families are affected by the order.

SEVERAL INJURED WHEN LATEST CHICAGO BOMB DAMAGES HOTEL

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—Three men were injured and several women were reported hurt when a powerful bomb was exploded in the hallway of the Haymarket Hotel today.

Windows within a radius of two blocks were shattered. Police believe the blast heralds a new outbreak of gang warfare for control of the city's vice interests. On the second floor of the wrecked building, Police Captain Matthew Homer discovered what appeared to be gambling equipment.

The hotel occupied the third and fourth floors of the bombed building. A shoe store was on the ground floor. The bomb evidently had been tossed into the first floor hallway.

Several women, cut by flying glass and plaster, were reported to have fled down fire escapes from the third and fourth floors.

TWO TOSSED FROM AIR; ONE LIVES TO TELL STORY

Airport Manager Tossed From Cockpit Catches
Wing And Crawls To Safety High In Air—
Friend Falls To Death

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 17.—Richard R. Fellers, manager of the Martinsburg, W. Va., airport, was pitched bodily from the cockpit of a careening airplane several thousand feet above the Blue Ridge and lived to tell about it today.

Phineas H. Stephens of Newmarket, Va., wealthy engineer and grandson of Alexander Stephens, vice president of the confederacy, also was thrown out of the plane. His body hurtled through the air to crash lifeless and broken on the rocky slopes of Nelson County.

The airplane in which Fellers and Stephens were passengers was piloted by Charles A. Masson of the Maryland National Guard. Masson said the plane was caught in the vortex of what he described as a "cyclonic disturbance" and got out of control. The force of the air current was so violent that both passengers were pitched out the cockpit.

Stephens was thrown clear. Fellers was caught in the wing.

Stephens and Fellers had been surveying the Shenandoah valley for airport locations and were en route to Richmond to report to Governor Byrd.

REMUS, LAWYER, IS BATTLING TO SAVE REMUS, DEFENDANT

Questions Alienist To Prove He Was Insane At Time

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 17.—Wearing a sprig of Christmas holly in the lapel of his coat and exuding optimism—whether he feels that way or not—George Remus, murder-defendant, is battling through the closing days of his fight to free himself with the detachment of a lawyer trying to save a client.

Gone is the shadow of the electric chair as Remus goes into action these final days of the long trial. Gone is the thought that he is a prisoner at the bar. He is now George Remus, the lawyer, defending one George Remus, charged by the state of Ohio with first degree murder for the shooting of his wife.

He has now turned to cross-examination. For the first time he is doing it himself. A sagacious lawyer before he turned bootlegger de luxe, Remus is engaged in trying to show the jury through his cross-examination of Dr. Edward Armitage Baber, one of the three alienists appointed by the court to observe the defendant, that he was insane when he fired the fatal shot into his wife's body.

Paradoxical as it may seem Remus, in the manner of a quite sane lawyer, is endeavoring to prove he was insane—"transitorily" insane—at the moment he pulled the trigger. That is Remus' sole defense.

Dr. Baber says Remus was sane the very moment he fired the shot, is sane now and was sane before the commission of the crime. Furthermore, the alienist declares Remus "knew right from wrong" when he was doing it and knew, too, that it was an offense against the laws of God and man.

Q.—(By Remus)—Doctor, medical scientists do not all agree as to what is insanity? A.—Not always.

Q.—And there is more literature written on this subject than on any other branch of medical science? A.—Yes.

Q.—Would you consider Kraft-Ebing an authority on insanity? A.—Yes, at the time he wrote his book, 1890 to 1900.

Kraft-Ebing is the German scientist who wrote a text book embracing a treatise on "transitory insanity." Remus has been studying it.

Q.—Have scientists so changed their opinions about insanity in the last twenty years, doctor, that you no longer consider him an authority? A.—Yes.

Thus, Remus is trying to prove his point, to show that his mind "exploded" just before he fired the fatal shot. If he does not break down the doctor's testimony in cross-examination, he is going to try to have the court permit him to propound to the alienists a thirty-three thousand word hypothetical question. It reviews the grievances which he claims, caused him to kill his wife, and he wants the alienists to give a one-word answer to the final question: "In your opinion was a man so afflicted sane or insane?"

ENGINE HITS TRUCK AT TRACK CROSSING ON VILLAGE STREET

Jamestown Crossing Is Accident Scene—Victim May Live

Fred Sanders, 40, Matthews, Ind., is in Espey Hospital, this city, with severe injuries received when the log truck he was driving was struck by an engine at the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad crossing, on Sycamore St., Jamestown, Saturday morning at 11:30 o'clock. The man is not expected to live.

Sanders was driving a large truck, loaded with logs, and his view of the railroad track is thought to have been obscured by a boxcar standing on a siding near the crossing. The engine that struck the auto was a "light" reefer, west after helping pull a train up the grade, east of Jamestown.

Homer H. Roberts, engineer of the Baltimore and Ohio, saw Sanders approach the crossing but was unable to notify him of the engine's approach. The log truck was struck and overturned and carried to the edge of the track. Roberts rushed to the scene and was assisted in carrying Sanders from the auto.

Examination at the morgue showed Sanders to have a fractured arm, a double fracture of the right arm below the elbow, a fracture of the right leg, a fracture of the head and injuries to the left hip. He has a chance of recovery, hospital officials said.

Dr. F. W. Ogden, said Sanders was called and gave Sanders most treatment. Sanders was unconscious for a time but regained consciousness enough to tell his name and address. He was rushed to the Espey hospital in a Stewart and son ambulance.

Dr. Marshall Best and other doctors at the Espey Hospital had determined early Saturday afternoon the extent of the man's injuries.

Sanders has been employed around Jamestown all winter for a lumber firm, cutting and loading logs. He is married and his wife lives in Matthews. Sanders has been rooming at a farm home east of Jamestown.

John Hoban, Dayton, was engineer of the locomotive.

ESTRANGED WIFE OF CHEAP STORE OWNER ASKS COUNSEL FEES

Mrs. Kresge Accuses Husband of Affair With Young Girl

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Supreme Court Justice Thomas C. Church today was studying testimony and affidavits submitted by Mrs. Doris Mercer Kresge in her action to obtain $25,000 counsel fees to carry on her divorce suit against her multimillionaire husband Sebastian S. Kresge, five and ten cent store magnate and anti-saloon league backer.

In court yesterday counsel for Mrs. Kresge submitted affidavits and testimony alleging that Kresge was trailed from church to a "love nest" where he was found scantily clad in the company of Gladys Fish, a pretty young New Englander. It was also testified that during Miss Fish's absence from the apartment Kresge entertained sixteen-year-old girls there.

NATICK, Mass., Dec. 17.—Denials to charges made in New York Supreme Court by counsel for Mrs. Doris Mercer Kresge, linking the name of their daughter with Sebastian S. Kresge, millionaire merchant who gave $500,000 to the anti-saloon league, were made today by Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Fish, parents of Gladys Fish, Natick High School honor student and former Boston University secretarial school undergraduate.

The friendly tone of the report caused prices to advance on the bourse.

Nationalist newspapers, however, call the recommendations a "doubtful gift," leaving the Dawes plan burden without the benefit of foreign currency.

Agent Gilbert again warned the German Government against extravagance in public expenditures. In concluding his report Agent Gilbert said that the experiences of the past few years have shown that the reparations problem cannot be solved until Germany is given a specific sum to pay on her own responsibility without outside interference.

The report takes issue with certain American bankers who claim that German Government foreign loans take priority in payment over the Dawes plan obligations.

Gilbert contends that under the Versailles treaty, the Dawes plan reparations payments constitute a first mortgage upon everything Germany owns and must be paid before anything else.

The report points out that the state-owned railway system will need funds for maintenance and expansion, but suggest an internal loan.

PROFESSIONAL FIRE BUGS
With the sentencing in November of the band of crooked merchants and professional firebugs that confessed to setting fire to a large warehouse in New York City, one of the most spectacular arson cases in the country has just been satisfactorily closed.

Judge Goddard, in the United States District court, meted out sentences of six and eight years in Atlanta Federal Prison, with a corresponding heavy fine to the principals responsible for robbing the insurance companies of large sums of money in arson fires. All of those guilty threw themselves upon the mercy of the court.

Judge Goddard, speaking to United States Attorney Tuttle after the sentence had been imposed, said:

"Mr. Tuttle, it is quite proper for the court to state that through the very efficient handling of this case by yourself and your assistants and the gentlemen who have been associated with you here, the Fire Department of the City of New York, the Fire Commissioner and the Fire Marshal, you have succeeded without any trial, in ridding this community of men who are a real menace to life and property of this city."

Similar good work should be encouraged. Make this country too "hot" to hold an arsonist. He is one of the lowest criminals in the list and deserves no public sympathy.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

The Christmas spirit tends to draw out the best in every one whom it inoculates. During the holiday season even the intolerant seem to find a measure of respect for the opinions of others; hearts are opened in an impulse of giving; friendliness is more in evidence; old dissensions and disagreements are forgotten.

It is obvious, from the widespread influence of the subtle thing which we call the Christmas spirit, that it must have a source far deeper than the human mind. In other words only in man's divine nature can there be a source deep enough and comprehensive enough to send forth an influence that touches so many people in such varied ways. It must come from that part of us which is so little recognized, the real spirit of man.

GAINING FINANCIAL INDEPENDENCE

"Financial independence is within the age of almost all of us," declares J. M. Campbell in the January issue of "The New Age Illustrated." "Good health," he says, "industry, a little good luck, a fair amount of common sense—you need nothing more."

Here are Mr. Campbell's rules for attaining financial independence:

Start a savings account, no matter how small it may be. Deposit at weekly or monthly intervals at least 10 per cent of your earnings.

When you have a balance of, say, $750, ask the cashier of the bank of which you are a customer, to buy for you a gilt-edged $1,000 bond. Pay him $300 on account and give him a note for the balance. Reduce this by monthly payments, as also by the interest the bond pays twice a year.

When you have paid for the bond referred to in the preceding paragraph, buy another, using the bond you have paid for as collateral.

RESPECT FOR YOURSELF

Although every community is afflicted with a number of citizens so conceited that they are next to unendurable, the fact remains that one of the commonest weaknesses of the average man is his lack of respect for himself. The master foe of a reasonable success in life is lack of self-respect.

When you arrive at the conclusion that you ARE somebody, that you have an important job to do, that your judgment is as likely to be right as the next man's and that you have a right to the expression of your opinion, you have made a long step up. When you have come to RESPECT yourself you have started somewhere.

There is nothing better in life than the feeling of independence, the feeling that you are too valuable to be thrown into the street, the feeling that you are needed—and the feeling that you have the courage to use your own judgment.

SMOKE

We become so used to certain bad conditions of living that we do little about them. In fact, we think little about them. That is dangerous. For example, we have all heard so much about the "smoke nuisance" in the last twenty years that there is no kick left in the complaint. We just accept the smoke nuisance. And therein we are weak-minded. New York, which is considered a very bright and clean city, loses 31 per cent of its available sunlight because of a pall of smoke. Many other cities are vastly worse than New York. There is plenty of ingenuity among men to bring something to pass that would cure this situation, but we have accepted the evil.

Smoke in cities is not merely a matter of dirt and depression. The sun is a great healer of human ills. We need the rays of the sun and we are deprived of them, needlessly, by smoke. A smarter generation, coming after us, will not tolerate smoke.

TOOLS OF DEATH

Scientists say nitroglycerin may soon be used as fuel for naval torpedoes, instead of super-heated compressed air. Nitroglycerin would more than double the motive power of torpedoes. Too bad so many of the good brains of the country are engaged in devising tools of war and death. What results we might hope for if the best brains of America might be drafted to work on plans for international peace!

THE UNKNOWN QUALITY

Science keeps maintaining it can measure human intelligence. We still hear that a boy's future can be predicted when he is 12 years old. Good enough in theory—and very interesting. But it simply does not work out—not always. There is something unmeasured and unknown in every boy and girl. It is unpredictable. The best we can do is to give the youngster the best possible home and the best place to play and the best place to work. And all of these things are up to elders.

or A
New Yorker

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Panorama of the Metropolis at 3 o'clock in the morning:

All orderly speakies and night clubs are turning out the lights and carrying out the customers in pursuance with the curfew ordinance. There are approximately three such lawabiding places. Numbers of irritated suburbanites are chartering taxis, the last Westchester train having left Harlem at 2:58. The Luxor baths reach their peak of activity, what with numbers of red-nosed gentlemen taking to the Turkish and Russian baths. Under the darkened canopy of the Liberty theatre, two derbies men matinee pennies idly. A good Republican, not only fried, but burnt, loudly informs Wets Forty-ninth street "Coolidge is gonna win in 1928." Unless you are a large, powerful person, armed with a revolver, refrain from asking one of the convivial group of hackmen to take you to Brooklyn.

The well-dressed vendor of roses is bestowing unsold flowers on a casual feminine acquaintance.

A horse cab clatters up Fifth avenue with a young man snoring comfortably under a top hat, in the rear.

Beware of the thundering trucks, laden with tabloid last editions.

The second assistant music critic of a prominent daily sits moodily behind a Western Union typewriter, mentally composing his letter of resignation, as is his habit.

He has attended eight concerts and one private musicale, the day before.

Childs Fifth avenue and Ruben's Madison avenue restaurants are very crowded.

It is not advisable to eat in a lunch wagon, this being the hour when the floors and counters are scrubbed off with ammonia.

Early-starting milk wagons give those abroad at this hour the feeling of being seasoned roués.

Editions of every morning paper, including the Times are now on sale.

And the evening papers will go to press in a few hours.

The old gent with the coffee stained old mustache is still standing on a Broadway corner, croaking to himself and holding out his ten-cent inflated rubber devil.

A motor cop looms up Fifth avenue in the wake of an unsuspecting roadster, which is in something of a hurry.

Walking about at this hour is a ghostly, lonely occupation. So is sitting in Grand Central, waiting for a train.

If you are still revolving, you begin to feel conscience stricken.

To all appearances New York is now as lifeless as Poughkeepsie and it is much better to be home in bed.

as I am as I write this.

The current whimsy has it: "Early to bed and early to rise and you'll never be Mayor of New York."

To illustrate: Included in Greenwich Village there is an organization, a very old and celebrated corps known as a Greenwich Village Hound Guards. Every year they gather in costumes, burlesquing celebrities and notabilities, and stage a swell parade.

As the honorable James Walker is a native villager, the Hound Guards wound up their parade last Thanksgiving in front of the Mayor's door. And they sung to him, and awaited an appearance.

But the Mayor did not show himself. However, it was spread about that he was watching, garbed in pajamas, from behind the curtains of an upstairs window.

At nine o'clock in the morning, as one of the celebrants remarked, the Mayor is just starting to get a good night's rest.

KELLYGRAMS
by Fred C. Kelly
A SENTIMENTAL QUEST

I find that many Americans come to Ireland, just as I did, to look up ancestral dwelling places, but unless they are able to obtain their information by word of mouth from among older residents, they are likely to meet disappointment; for Irish records are shockingly poor.

The Irish are temperamental folk, and when they get steamed up for a fight, as often happens, they do silly things without hope of gain.

In one of their fairly recent fuses they burned up all the census records at Dublin. As years go by that loss will grow rather than diminish in importance. Since poll tax, as well as other tax records, and also birth records, are scant, beyond 50 years back, it is often utterly impossible to establish where a family must have lived.

I had long cherished an ambition to get such sentimental satisfaction as might be possible from locating and perhaps owning the humble cottage my father lived in back in the days when he walked barefooted to his work, trying to along the wear of his shoes, bought by the pathetically small instalments. But the best I could do was to take photographs of several forlorn little homes, one of which might be the place I sought.

I walked, somewhat sadly, down the same little street leading to the spinning mill where my good old dad must have hastened his steps after he had been forced to face, at the age of ten, the problem of earning a living. And I thought of the far-off times when I sat on his knee asking him to tell me about these very surroundings. No wonder he was never keen to talk much about the joys of boyhood.

I wonder why it is that rarely before we get into the 40's, do those of us blessed with good parents begin to sense the efforts they made to give us a decent start.

My own kid, if he had the remotest idea how well I hope he gets along, might be surprised.

ANOTHER CASE WHERE THE OLD ADAGE DOESN'T WORK

"WHEN THE DOCTORS DISAGREE, THE PATIENT GETS WELL"
OLD PROVERB

Living and Loving
BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

WHAT SHALL THEY DO?

If a girl has two admirers who are brothers, had she better give both up rather than risk making trouble between them? This, in substance, is the problem of my first correspondent today.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a girl 18 years old and in junior high school. I have a boy friend of whom I am very fond. He seems very fond of me. He has a brother near my own age of whom I am fond, and he is also fond of me. What shall I do, quit the older brother and go with the younger, or what? Bleeding Heart."

Why not be friends with them both, as long as you are fond of them? Unless, of course, it is making trouble and then you will have to choose.

Alcohol Habit

It was not in my articles that your friend saw a cure for the alcohol habit, Mrs. B. I regret deeply that there is nothing that I could write on that that would help in the least.

There are methods that are used for the cure of the alcohol habit, but the patient has to be in a hospital, under constant supervision. I think they are successful if the patient has enough character to keep from temptation after the desire has been eradicated. For your part, all you can do is to see that he has the right surroundings, as far as you can, to help him in his abstaining diet. I think a vegetarian diet would be best, with no meat, fish or eggs. The protein should be supplied by liberal amounts of milk and cheese, butts and legumes. Give him at least two pounds of fruits and vegetables a day, so that he will have good elimination without taking any physics, and will get plenty of vitamins and mineral elements.

If you do not know the physicians in your locality who would be able to give him treatment, won't you ring up your County Medical Society and ask them to tell you?

Drinking With Meals

No, M., it is not harmful to drink water with meals, so long as it is not used to wash the food down. Nor is it harmful to have the water iced, if it is not taken too rapidly.

Yes, we have an article on Boils, which you may have by sending a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request. Allow two weeks for its receipt.

Exercise and Chronic Appendicitis

"Dear Doctor: I was much interested in your article on appendicitis, being a victim of the chronic form. Please let me know through the column if this is aggravated by doing the daily dozen exercises in the morning; I have been in the habit of doing these, but have been afraid to try it, since having a slight attack two months ago. M."

You would have to be guided by what your surgeon told you, M.; it would depend altogether on the case.

I'm afraid you didn't get much out of my article, M.; if it didn't make you realize that chronic appendicitis may light into an acute most idea how well I hope he gets along, might be surprised.

Behind the Scenes
in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Executive departments and sub-departments, government bureaus and boards and commissions, all sorts of federal offices and institutions, having their annual hemorrhage of reports just now, to congress—either directly, or through whatever intervening functionaries, or groups of same, may happen to stand between them and the legislative body.

There's a regular library of this stuff every year about this time. The president starts it with his message, which is a report, in its way, with recommendations. The others compiling right in afterward, to the tune of twenty or thirty, some of them good-sized volumes.

Occasionally there's one with good reading in it—even sensational. The trouble is, they're bunched too much. To wade through the entire mass is a hopeless undertaking, so the whole thing usually goes unread except by a few specialists.

The move to abolish about fifteen of the house of representatives' standing committees has developed an amount of ill feeling on Capitol Hill out of all proportion to what anybody would imagine possible without an understanding of the reasons responsible for it.

For one thing, a committee chairmanship carries a certain amount of importance with it. The committee may not amount to much, but the chairman always is in a position to refer to himself as head of such-and-such a committee, and visiting constituents are impressed by it—the chairman sees to it that they are, when he tells 'em about it and explains how busy it keeps him—though a member of one committee told congress last winter that it was five years since his outfit had had a meeting. But aside from that, a committee chairman has an extra office and the committee has a secretary, who really is the chairman's personal secretary—unless it's an exceedingly important committee, which makes its secretary hustle.

Now, an extra office is a consideration to a representative. It doesn't matter so much to a senator. He has two anyway, and some have three, but representatives have only one apiece—except chairmen.

Here then, we have some fifteen chairmen who are liable to be tossed out into the cold world if their committees are abolished. They're rather influential congressmen, too, or they wouldn't be chairmen. They're not of prime importance, or they'd be chairmen of bigger committees, but they're above the average.

There are 61 standing committees in the house of representatives and only 31 in the senate, which may or may not suggest that the former body has more than are absolutely necessary.

The house, for instance, has a "committee on expenditures" by each of the executive departments—state, war, navy and so on. There are ten, at a clutter. Congressman Tilson, house majority floor leader, can't see why one "auditing committee" wouldn't do just as well. Others can. It would be harder work, among other things.

A couple of other house committees it's proposed to abolish are these: The woman's suffrage committee. The committee on the alcoholic liquor traffic.

The argument is that woman have the vote already and that there hasn't been any alcoholic liquor traffic since prohibition.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

MESSAGE TO KEEP YOUR THROAT AND NECK GRACEFUL

Instructions on facial massage would not be complete without taking up the region of throat and neck. On these parts the lay of the muscles is very different from that of the face. It is always best to use a downward movement in massage, and in applying or removing cream on the neck, unless you happen to be exceedingly large in the bust. In the latter case, massage movements can be upward.

Most French women, after they have reached maturity, wear chin and throat straps for several hours each day. These beauty implements are a great aid in keeping the muscles braced and preventing the droop or the scrawny neck that so frequently spoils a woman's beauty. It is best to apply a chin and throat strap after a treatment when you have patted in a muscle-tightener, or in case of a double chin caused by general obesity, after you have used patting and a fat solvent.

This may seem like a paradox, but it is nevertheless true that the same basic treatment is needed for a sagging contour line and for a thin, scrawny neck. Both are due primarily to lack of circulation and are accompanied by a surprising lack of tension in the skin. In both cases the remedy is to stop the sluggish blood stream and use a muscle-tightener to restore normal tension to the skin.

The scrawny neck needs nourishment as well, because it is literally starved. Build it up with a rich feeding cream or pat in warm olive oil. If you apply olive oil, you will find it has a tendency to "yellow" the skin slightly, in which case it is advisable to use a bleaching medium to counteract the effect. Lemon juice and water in a three-to-one proportion makes a good bleach, or you can get one of the bleaching creams on the market. You might substitute for your regular cleansing cream one that is also a bleach.

Work well down on your shoulders when you give attention to your neck. Don't try to massage around the edges of a negligence. Remove everything, even straps, from your shoulders, and go about the job in a workmanlike manner. Personally, I like to pin a towel around my bust and leave everything above it bare for the work. You can use a stroke down on your throat and around the shoulders, but directly under the chin and jaws pat with the backs of the hands. Pat briskly in the center and move gently as you approach the ears.

In my next article, I am going to digress from the general content of my talks and give you some practical advice on "Massage for Beautiful Hands."

THEY KNEW

The topic had been carefully explained, and as an aid to each pupil, a card bearing the picture of a boy fishing, was given. The notation on the card read: "Even pleasure requires patience. See the boy fishing? He must sit and wait. He must be very patient."

Then the teacher asked what we need most when we go fishing, and the reply came: "Bait!"

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent.

THE LOST HOPE

"Climbed a tree! Ate up house, honey and all!" gaped Peter.

"How terrible! Couldn't you do a thing to stop that Bear?"

"Not a thing!" buzzed the Bees. "Goodness knows, we tried. When he was yet a long way off we spied him and hurried home from the flower field to give the warning!"

"Didn't the Bees have time to make their escape?" asked the Boy.

All four of the little Brown Bees stared at Peter in surprise. "We didn't try to," buzzed they, at last. "Surely you have forgotten all you ever knew or you never knew much about Bees or you would not have asked that question. Bees never desert their home, never! No sirree! Warned, our people made ready for that Bear. When Mr. Bruin first set paw on the trunk we flew at him and tried to sting his eyes, his nose, his hide. But he was a bit cured he. On up he climbed. Then he out of our best to smother him. We stung him till our stingers were tired. No use! He reached the limb where hung our nest. He raised his huge paw. One strike! Two strikes! Three strikes! And down to the ground tumbled our home of wax—our home that we had worked so hard and so long to build, our home that was so beautiful and roomy. But, oh, how can we tell it—down to the ground tumbled the babies, too!"

"Tch! Tch!" Peter felt very sorry for the poor Bees, and said so, and the little Brown Bees went on.

"Soon a new Queen would have sung in her cell. Nobody knows what splendid workers would have come out of the waxen cradles. Lost, lost, all lost—princesses, NEXT—"Right About Face and Fight."

OHIO WESLEYAN USES TWO TEAMS TO DEFEAT "YELLOW JACKETS"

Ohio Wesleyan University's two basketball teams demonstrated their superiority over the Cedarville College "Yellow-Jackets" with a decisive 54 to 20 victory Friday night at Alford gymnasium.

Coach Dietrich's two teams played alternately during the contest. Coach Borst's first string team was leading Wesleyan 9 to 4 at the end of the first quarter when the visitors substituted their other team. At this point Coach Borst made several substitutions, apparently breaking up a winning combination.

Wesleyan ran wild in the second period, scoring nineteen points to two for Cedarville. The Delaware school led at the half 23 to 11.

The Wesleyan mentor switched teams again in the third quarter, but this fact made little difference, and in the final quarter when an entire new team was again thrown into the contest, the score continued to mount.

Gordon and Little were outstanding stars for Cedarville, the latter playing an exceptional defensive game.

Hilzler was high point man of the contest for Wesleyan while Siegenthaler also played a whirlwind game.

Cedarville College girls defeated the Jacamar girls, a newly-organized Springfield team, 23 to 10 in the preliminary.

Both contests were thrilling to watch and, as the saying goes, closer than the scores indicate.

Pickering, Caesar Creek forward, was the scoring star of the preliminary 19 to 10 while Bowersville boys emerged victor 17 to 13 in the aftermath.

JUNIOR HIGH TEAM BEATS WAYNESVILLE TEAM IN CLOSE GAME

Central Junior High Basketball team won an exciting game from Waynesville Juniors 11 to 10 on the Waynesville floor Friday night.

The contest rapidly developed into a defensive tilt as the score indicates.

Waynesville used various tactics to draw Central's five-man defense out of position for close-in shots.

Ellis was Waynesville's outstanding star, scoring two field goals, but was forced to shoot from difficult angles. Consequently he missed a great many attempts.

For the visitors, King, running guard and captain, showed occasional flashes of clever dribbling and shooting, obtaining a field goal and two fouls.

Creamer, diminutive forward, hit the net for two pretty fielders and kept the opposing defense in a worried frame of mind.

Ringer sank a neat field goal to start the contest and with the score tied at 10 to 10, made a foul shot that won the game.

Thompson and Flory put up good defensive games for the winners.

The Theater

The coming presentation of Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer" at Neth's Grand Theater, Columbus, marks the first appearance of this great screen special outside New York, Chicago and Philadelphia. It is in this picture adapted from the celebrated play, that the black-face comedian makes his screen debut and in that he is credited with having scored the greatest hit of his life.

There are reasons for the success of the film. The story it tells is not only full of appeal, but strikes a sympathetic chord that is not to be denied. Further, than this, it is the first motion picture in which the Vitaphone is used in all the musical sequences. Through it Jolson is seen and heard singing six melodies. One of these Many teachers braved the inclement weather to attend the second bi-monthly meeting of the Greene County Teachers' Association at the McKinley building.

The third number of the Y. M. C. A. Star course, featuring the Modjeska male quartette, with Ladu Layton as reader, was greatly enjoyed by a large audience.

The speedy basketball team of St. Marys Institute, Dayton, trimmed the Cedarville College team 40 to 13.

Greene County Commissioners met with Clark County commissioners in Clifton and accepted the Tan Yard road improvement which has just been completed.

songs composed especially for the picture, is entitled "Mother, I Still Have You." There is a great cast surrounding Jolson in the picture, including May McAvoy and Warner Oland. "The Jazz Singer" opens in Columbus December 24.

The suit of Hope Hampton, actress, against Charles Dillingham and Martin Beck, theatrical producers, for $35,000 because she was removed from the leading role of "Madame Pompadour" in 1924 prior to its New York premier, was settled out of court Thursday for $10,000.

Easier to hate than a conceivable male villain, the screen "bad woman" has invaded the films. As Roxie Hart, "The most beautiful jazz murderess," Phyllis Haver brings the wicked villainess to the silver sheet, in the picturization of the stage success, "Chicago," now in production at DeMille studio.

"CAP" STUBBS—They Must Not Know Until Christmas

Dear Skippy:
Us Orioles give your letter the once-over an' I didn't take five breaths before I got to buzzin' off the answer. The Orioles wants me to say that if you're willin' we'll adopt this kid up there an' make it a mascot. Only the one thing about it is that milk an' stuff for her to eat will have to come out o' the treasury, an' I don't know how long 39 cents will keep her. Somerset Gohagen got the raz from the crowd, 'cause he said if they voted for it he'd black-ball it. He says a canary's a canary, whether they're two-an-a-half or a hundred, they're just plain canaries, an' it'd give the Orioles A. C. a bad name. We got to 'bkin' it over though an' I pointed out to him that he shouldn't be lookin' at it that way, so after his nose stops bleedin' he finally throws in his vote with the rest o' the crowd, an' here's what we voted:
We voted the 39c to go to the Marg-gee kid for Christmas. Then each one of us got together and chipped in a nickel extra apiece. That makes 75c extra.
We was thinkin' o' gettin' up an Oriole Hospital Christmas fund for the poor. Somerset Gohagen butts in again an' says: "What do ya mean, poor? I was eight years old before I knew that food meant anything besides buns an' coffee, an' I had to go 'round myself with a half a suspender holdin' up me pants." We booted him out o' the club unless he raised a nickel, so he is goin' to kill three o' Mrs. Tilden's chickens at three for 6c.
You asked us about toys. I don't know what we could send unless it is a football. Corey Ford says he's got a hockey stick in two pieces, but he c'n put some tape over it an' if they don't use it nobody'd know the difference. Art Duffy says he'll give a pair of skates an' there's a nickel spot on one o' 'em, so maybe after all we may be able to get up a Christmas box. Danny Shea is goin' to give a clay pipe, so's they can blow bubbles. After it gets rinsed out a couple o' times the kids won't notice the tobacco taste. If the kids want to read, Ray Marlowe has got a lot o' old newspapers up in his barn.
The gang misses you and hopes you get better soon, an' we was wonderin' how it ought to seem if we got up a cake sale or somethin', then give the proceeds for the hospital. Somerset Gohagen says if we do Lizzie says she'll make a cake.
Tell the kid the Orioles all voted for her as a mascot. She didn't get one little black-ball even. Write as soon as you get this.
SOOKY.

HIGH PRESSURE PETE—Nobody Home

Money Love

By BEATRICE BURTON Author of "SALLY'S SHOULDERS," "HONEY LOU," "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL," ETC.

READ THIS FIRST:
LILY LEXINGTON, spoiled only child of the CYRUS LEXINGTONS, is engaged to marry STALEY DRUMMOND, a rich bachelor. She throws him over a few weeks before the wedding to marry her mother's chauffeur, PAT FRANCE. Pat has invented a new kind of piston ring that he and his friend, ROY JETTERSON intend to put on the market. Pat goes to work in Roy's garage and later in the machine shop where he intends to make the piston ring. He works all day and late at night and Lily finds life very dull living with Pat's parents and his sister, FLORENCE, next door to their little grocery store. Finally she quarrels with Pat's mother and insists that they leave the house. So they rent a little furnished flat, where Lily learns to keep house in a hit-or-miss fashion, seeing neither Pat's family nor her own.

Then one day she meets her former chum, SUE CAIN, down town and Sue invites her to a card party. Lily charges $300 worth of clothes at Angouleme's smart shop to wear to the party, and when she cannot pay for them, telephones Staley Drummond and he makes out a check to pay for them. Later Lily learns that Florence is bookkeeper at the shop and wonders if she has seen Staley's checks and knows that he paid for the clothes.

Pat sees the expensive garments and wonders where and how Lily got them. She tells him that she got them from Angouleme's on approval and must pay them $75 cash. Pat gives it to her, although he can't afford to, and with it Lily pays her debts at the neighborhood delicatessen and starts to trade at Pat's father's store. The France family, eager to be friendly, send along a wedding present of a washing machine, which is far from Lily's idea of an ideal gift. However, she learns to use it. One day she has a letter from Staley, meets him, and he tells her he has decided she is not happy or she would not have to come to him in her trouble about the clothes. He sent her flowers one day after he has told her he means to have her eventually, and Roy Jettersson's wife, SADYE, coming to the flat, sees them. She picks up Staley's card, too.

(Now Go On With the Story)

CHAPTER XXXIX

"Mr. Staley Stanwood Drummond," said Sadye, reading from the card in high triumph. "What an aristocratic name, Lil!" Lily grinned her teeth. . . . It made her perfectly furious to have Sadye see what was written on the card. And it always set her nerves on edge to hear Sadye call her "Lil." Coming from Sadye's lips, "Lil" sounded so common somehow or other. To Lily, at least.

"Lil, that's the men you were going to marry when you took up with Pat, isn't it?" Lily nodded grimly. She could have slapped Sadye's face and turned her out of the flat at that moment with great pleasure. "Hm," Sadye mused. "Well, he doesn't seem to get over his yen for you, does he?" Her sharp little eyes took in the great bunch of pale pink roses once more. She seemed to be figuring how much they must have cost, in her own mind.

"If I were you, Lil, I certainly would send those roses right straight back to him," she said, nodding her head wisely. "I certainly would—I know Pat France, and I don't believe he'd want his wife to be getting presents from another man, even if it was just a bunch of flowers."

Lily thought guiltily of the bath room shelf, with all the beauty aids that Staley had sent her when she told him she had none. . . . What would Pat say if he knew that the very powder on her straight little nose was the gift of another man—and of Staley Drummond, in particular?

"You know, a married woman can't be too careful," Sadye was saying now. "It takes so little to make people talk—"

"Oh, Sadye, keep quiet!" Lily was exasperated with her. "For heaven's sake, who's going to know whether Staley Drummond sends me flowers or not, unless I tell it—or unless you do?"

Sadye shook her head. "Not me! I'd never tell it—I'm no trouble maker," she said, turning the flashing rings around and around on her fingers. Sadye had lots of jewelry. "Anything I've got to say I'll say right to your face," she went on, and then she said it:

"I don't know whether you make a business of seeing this man or not"—she waved Staley's card in the air—"but if you do, you're a very foolish girl. Pat worships the ground you walk on, and if he ever had any cause to doubt you, it would kill him, I think."

Lily deliberately took the card out of her fingers, tore it up, and threw the pieces down behind the gas loss in the grate.

"I can't keep a man from sending me flowers," she said, and then as she turned around from the mantel-piece a startling thought came to her. . . . Sadye knew more about herself and Staley Drummond than she was letting on! Something in Sadye's face told her so.

"Sadye," she said quickly, "has Florence France said anything to you about me lately?" Sadye's pink face became more deeply pink, and she began to blink those sharp little eyes of hers.

"Well—" "Well, what?" asked Lily. Sadye looked embarrassed. "Well, I've been hearing things," she admitted, and while she was speaking Lily remembered that Elizabeth Ertz had seen her getting out of Staley's car that first night on Boyle St., in front of the restaurant. . . . and of course, she had told Sadye!

It came to Lily that she would have to make a clean breast of the whole story—or at least what would seem like the whole story to Sadye.

"Well, I took Elizabeth Ertz home. If you want to know," he answered.

some new clothes and I charged them to my father—and then when my family refused to let me charge them, there was no one for me to go to but Staley, so I did and that was the end of it."

Sadye gave her a narrow look. "Was that the end of it?" she asked, getting up and pulling on a pair of too-tight kid gloves. "Are you sure?"

Lily flushed—not a bright scarlet flush like Sadye's, but a soft, wild-rose pink, that died away along her cheek, leaving her dead white. "I said that was the end of it," she snapped, and got up from her chair to let Sadye know that, so far as she was concerned, this was the end of the visit, too.

"You and Pat will surely come for supper tomorrow night, then?" asked Sadye, taking the hint and getting up. "I'm going to have a nice little crowd in for Welsh rarebit and near-beer, and then we're going to play a lot of wonderful new phonograph records we have—not jazz, you know but classical stuff. And then I wouldn't be surprised if Pat and Roy got out their saxophones!" She laughed.

"Saxophones!" Lily was astounded. "You don't mean to say that Pat France plays a saxophone? Why, he's never mentioned 'saxophone' to me."

Sadye nodded. "Yes, they practice in the garage mostly," she said, and Lily smiled tenderly to herself. It made Pat seem very absurd and boyish and lovable to her—the thought that he had a saxophone, played it and loved it, but was ashamed of it.

"But sometimes they play at our house," Sadye added. "When Elizabeth Ertz is there to help them out on the piano."

Instantly Lily froze. . . . Elizabeth Ertz! The very sound of her name was hateful to her! She could just picture her, sitting at the piano in Sadye's house, mooning over the keys and making baby eyes at Pat as they played together!

"Is Elizabeth Ertz going to be at your house tomorrow night, Sadye?" she asked with surface sweetness, and Sadye said she was. "Then I won't be—and neither will Pat!" Lily said firmly to herself, as she watched Sadye waddle down the front walk and climb into her car a moment later.

All her love for Pat—all her jealousy—came surging up into her heart as she stood there behind the net curtains of her little living room and the thought of The Ertz and Pat and the hours they had spent together learning music—all sentimental, mushy music—all about "June" and "moon" and "spoon" no doubt, too!

"And then Sadye Jettersson has the cheek to ask her to a party with me and Pat!" she said to herself. "And the brass to tell me I ought not to see Staley when she brings The Ertz and Pat together every time she can!"

She just wished she had thought of that while Sadye was in the house and "bawled" her out for it good and proper! She certainly did!

That night when Pat came home at ten o'clock, tired and shabby and none too clean after a day in the shop and the garage, she was very loving and sweet to him. She kissed him and clung to him, patting him with her hands.

"Darling," she said, "I never know how much I love you until I'm jealous of you."

"Jealous?" asked Pat, too tired to talk about jealousy or love or anything else. He sank into a chair and began to unlace his shoes, yawning as he did it.

"Have you anything to eat in the house?" he asked wearily. "I didn't stop for supper tonight—just anything will do."

I may be late, but he'll be over to get you tonight about six. It's all arranged."

Lily said nothing. "Go ahead and arrange all you want to!" she thought, glaring at his innocent back as he ate his breakfast in the tiny kitchen. "But I'm not going to that party!"

That night when Roy came for her she told him she couldn't go with him. But she offered no excuse, and she closed the door of the flat in his face while he was still talking.

When he was gone she sat down and waited for Pat to come home. She waited until nine o'clock. Then she went to bed, but she could not sleep.

She heard the clock in the sitting room strike ten and then eleven. Upon the stroke of twelve she heard him open the front door and she rushed in to him, holding her kimono tight around her. Her face was white with anger, and her eyes blazed at him.

"Well, this is a fine time to come home to me, after your evening's pleasure!" she said. "I thought you'd come home to me when you heard I was here—Where have you been until this hour? Playing the saxophone with that Ertz creature?"

Pat shook his head. "No, I got there too late to play anything," he said. "But I took Elizabeth Ertz home, if you want to know."

"And I'm expected to supply twenty-one meals every week with it—and do a lot of other things besides!" she thought bitterly. "It wouldn't be so bad, but I hardly see my husband. He comes home and goes to bed at night, and that's all I do see of him, practically."

She looked around the cream-colored walls of the little room—the picture of "The Hanging of the Crane" between the windows—the smoking stand beside Pat's easy chair. And, looking at them, her gray-green eyes hardened until they were like jades of jade. . . . She had looked at them for so many months, day in and day out, night in and night out, that the very sight of them made her feel cold and unhappy.

"What a dreary life I do have," she thought, and she put her head down on the arm of Pat's easy chair and began to cry because she was lonely and poor and blue and jealous.

Suddenly she jumped up, dashed the tears out of her eyes, and went back to the little bedroom. "Pat!" she called, going down the narrow hall. "The Jetterssons are having some people to supper tomorrow night, but we aren't going—Pat! Did you hear what I said?"

He did not answer, and standing in the doorway, she saw that he had fallen asleep without turning out the bed lamp above his dark, handsome head.

Pat knew about Sadye's Sunday night supper.

"I'll go straight from the garage," he told Lily on Sunday morning. "I told Roy I'd stay there today—and

POLICE SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA FORMED

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 17.—This city boasts of a musical organization not only unique but promising. It is the Toledo Police Symphony Orchestra.

Four years ago when Patrolman Charles W. Roth started the organization of which he was director, little was thought of its possibilities.

Toledoans today, however, are beginning to be proud of their police musicians. The orchestra has seventy-five regular players and twenty reserve players.

They have become accustomed to rigorous rehearsals during the four years' period. Concerts are free. As a result many music lovers of the city necessarily are relied upon to aid in the support of the organization. Players receive no salaries.

In many cities they are taking steps to abate the "making of love" on the highways and boulevards by young people in automobiles.

The account of this reform says: "On almost every boulevard and shaded street you will find automobiles drawn up to the side of the road with lights out and containing one or more couples 'making love.'"

Why not call it by its right name, gentlemen? These young people are not making love, but making lust.

Why not start a drive to teach the young man and woman the difference between the two words? Why degrade love by applying it to those things which only mean lust? It is true that love is everywhere, and it is a very sacred and beautiful passion, but it loves light rather than darkness, and the love which really makes this old world go 'round is very different from the thing to which the word is applied.

We see love in the budding flower and in the stars of heaven; through the whisperings of tradition and the thunders of history we hear it, and death in life has come when we cannot feel it.

Every day love clasps the mother's breast with baby fingers; love touches the cheek of youth with sweet caresses.

Love illumined the rugged face of Lincoln as he affixed his name to the paper that liberated four million souls from bonds of slavery.

Nathan Hale went to a disgraceful death while in love's ecstasy he cried: "Had I a hundred lives I would gladly give them for my country!"

In a vision, love came to the little peasant mortal of Doremmy, and straightway she followed with steps that did not falter—whether it led to the victor's crown at Orleans or the burning stake at Rheims.

Love touched the pen of Shakespeare and set the whole world of poetic fancy aflame with rose and gold.

MOTHER TO JOIN LINDY

FLYER WILL REMAIN OVER CHRISTMAS TO VISIT WITH MOTHER

Panama Canal Zone Plans Welcome For Famous Ace

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 17.—

With his mother coming down to visit him over Christmas, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today looked forward to a doubly joyful stay at the Mexican capital.

The flying colonel learned of his mother's decision in a long distance telephone conversation with her yesterday. Mrs. Lindbergh had previously declined to visit her son.

After the holidays are over, America's flying ambassador of good-will will continue on his tour of the Central American countries, the inhabitants of which are already planning to do him great honors when he arrives.

For a time it appeared that Lindbergh would be drawn into a controversy concerning bull-fights, but today all doubt in the question was dispelled by the young man himself. He has been invited to attend a bull-fight tomorrow. Telegrams from organizations in the United States have urged him not to attend.

But Lindbergh, feeling that he is the sole judge in such matters, has let it be known that he will attend. According to the flyer himself, this happens to be a case of doing in Rome as the Romans do. Besides he said:

"I believe that Mexicans are perfectly capable of selecting their own sports."

Col. Lindbergh was elated today over his flight late yesterday over Mexico City in a Mexican Army plane. And Mexican Army pilots were still talking of his remarkable skill at handling a plane. Once aloft, Lindbergh cavorted in perfect aerial acrobatic style, zooming and looping about in the city while critical observers below were loud in their praises.

PANAMA, Canal Zone, Dec. 17.—The city of Panama in particular and the entire Canal Zone in general were enthusiastic today when it was announced definitely that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh would drop in for a visit.

The residents were most enthusiastic, making inquiries at newspaper offices and government buildings as to the exact date of the flyer's arrival.

A tremendous reception is planned, as Col. Lindbergh is one of Panama's two popular American heroes. The other is Jack Dempsey.

A general holiday for the thirteen thousand canal employees will not be declared, it was explained, because vessels passing through must be accommodated, but as many as possible in Panama may be given a few hours off to welcome the flyer.

Lindbergh's landing place will be determined today. It was announced by Horacio Alfaro, Panama's secretary of foreign relations. It was expected that the army flying field on the Atlantic side of the canal would be designated.

PUT FREE LANCERS ON SIX-DAY BASIS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 17.—Film actors, who free lance in the studios, will be paid on a six-day week basis and hereafter can not be discharged without specific reason, if the new standard is put into effect by the producers. The contract has been approved by the actors branch of the academy of motion picture arts and sciences and the academy's directors is expected to put the new agreement into force January 1.

WEATHER HOLDS UP ENDURANCE FLIGHT

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Dec. 17.—Winds and bad weather this morning still kept the "Pride of Detroit" from taking off on its endurance flight.

T. H. Kinkade, in charge of the monoplane, tested the wind shortly after daybreak and found it unfavorable. Kinkade said the airplane could not take off heavily burdened with a westerly wind. Edward F. Schlee and William S. Brock, world fliers who will pilot the plane on its flight, say they will take off at the first opportunity when the wind shifts.

CHARGES OF MORAL TURPITUDE VOTED AGAINST GOVERNOR JOHNSTON OF OKLAHOMA ON FRIDAY

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Dec. 17.—Governor Henry S. Johnston today maintained the same unperturbed calm which he has held for weeks although the house committee appointed to investigate state offices last night voted charges against him of moral turpitude.

"I have nothing to fear from the character assassins: I regard it as nothing. I am sorry that innocent people have been drawn into this controversy but I do not contemplate any further extension of the power of the militia," Gov. Johnston said.

"It is regrettable that such happens, but I have nothing to fear as my character is clean."

"The governor shortly after midnight dispelled rumors which were prevalent in the early hours that he would extend his proclamation requiring troops to stop any meeting of the house investigating committee anywhere."

The probers adjourned early in the evening with the expectation of the arrival of troops to stop any meeting of the house investigating committee anywhere.

Governor Johnston, following a conference with attorneys which lasted until after midnight, announced that he would issue a statement soon regarding his future action, he would not indicate that this might be further than to say that it wouldn't be a proclamation of martial law.

EFFORT TO ABOLISH AIRPLANE EMBARGO TO MEXICO STARTED

Woman Solon Starts Congress Drive To Lift Bars

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The triumphant air voyage of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to Mexico City was signalized here today by the opening of a congressional move to abolish the embargo on shipment of airplanes to Mexico.

Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, Republican congresswoman from Massachusetts, began the campaign with an appeal to the state department.

The proposal is backed by the United States Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce and many other organizations, she said.

While the United States has erected an embargo wall at the Rio Grande on the theory that exportation of airplanes would aid revolutionists, European aircraft factories have been seizing Mexican business, she said. The possibilities of establishing air passenger and freight routes through Mexico to Central and South America is additional argument for a change in the policy of the state department, she asserted.

"Col. Lindbergh's successful flight to Mexico City suggests that all embarrassing restrictions such as the present prohibition against American airplanes crossing the border be removed by the state department," said Mrs. Rogers.

"Our aircraft factories are losing business to European competitors as a result of this embargo. The Diario official of Mexico City recently recorded an order for $265,000 worth of planes in England and a Mexican aviation commission sailed on September 11 to Europe for the purpose of studying European planes and engines."

The department of commerce, it is understood, has given encouragement to the proposal, but is powerless to act in the face of the state department embargo.

Despite many rumors that the government was ready to lift the embargo on firearms and munitions as well as airplanes, the state department has taken no action to this end.

TO PUSH AMENDMENT TO CHANGE SESSION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Determined to abolish "lame duck" sessions of congress shall get a hearing in the present session, the house committee on elections of the president and congress today announced plans to report a bill to the house before the Christmas holidays.

Rev. White, (R) of Kansas, chairman, said the committee had endorsed the principle of the measure and would hold a hearing on Monday, after which a bill probably would be reported.

Five resolutions will be before the committee, which is expected to endorse White's measure amending the constitution to provide for inauguration of the president on January 26 instead of March 4, and the convening of congress every year on January 4 instead of the first week in December.

AWARD CONTRACT FOR NEW VIADUCT

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 17.—Construction of Cincinnati's new two million dollar viaduct on the Atlantic and Pacific Highway was awarded to the Powell Ahlberg Construction Company of Chicago, Ill., according to an announcement made at the state highway department here today.

The company's bid was $1,851,828. It is to be built on U. S. R. 52, just at the city corporation limits, according to the announcement.

NATIONS WOULD JOIN ATTEMPT TO STAMP OUT TRAFFIC IN DRUGS

Increase In Narcotic Smuggling Alarms Government—Think Agreements Would Help Check Law-Breaking.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Negotiations are in progress between the United States and a number of other governments in an effort to draft a practical agreement for suppression of the rapidly increasing international narcotic traffic, it was learned today. Smuggling of narcotics continued on a large scale and there are no indications of a decrease in the illegal supply unless drastic steps are taken to check the traffic, according to treasury officials.

Agreements among the governments of United States, England, France, Germany, Cuba and possibly others, similar to the informal pact with Great Britain, may be the outcome of the negotiations resulting in a general campaign against dope peddlers and smugglers.

Without an international concerted effort there appears to be little prospect of wiping out one of the most vicious traffics of the underworld, officials said.

Plans to combat the evil are being drawn up in the foreign control unit of the treasury, headed by Harry F. Anslinger, who was instrumental in bringing about an agreement whereby the smuggling situation between the Bahamas and Florida has been placed under better control.

Col. L. G. Nutt, head of the narcotic unit, said that smuggling conditions at the close of the year are little changed from the situation six months ago. Smuggled dope, principally from Europe, is brought in on most of the ocean liners, most of it passing through the ports of New York. Seizures valued at about $175,000 were made in 1927.

Little dope legally imported or produced in this country is, however, being diverted to illegal channels. Officials do not believe that the number of addicts is increasing and they discredit reports of the wide use of narcotics by school and college students.

Dr. J. M. Doran, prohibition commissioner, in a report to Secretary Mellon said that co-operation of the European governments has been solicited with respect to greater control over manufacture and internal distribution to eliminate what is considered the primary dope supply smuggled into United States.

BANK BANDITS GET $15,500

STOCKTON, Calif., Dec. 17.—Authorities today sought two youthful bandits who forced officials of the state bank of Escalon, near here, to lay face downward on the vault floor, while they looted the safe of $15,500, strolled out to the street, and escaped in an automobile.

J. S. Garberson, cashier and Miss Elmer Huleen, assistant cashier, were alone in the bank when the two men appeared.

BOYS REMOVED FROM BURNING BUILDING WITHOUT INJURIES

Children Rescued From First Blaze Again Saved

QUEBEC, Dec. 17.—The St. John Berchman boarding school was a mass of ruins today, the second educational institution to be razed by fire here in the last forty-eight hours. There were 142 boys asleep in the boarding school when the fire started in the basement last night, but all of them were on the first floor of the building and escaped uninjured.

With the terrible disaster at the Hospice St. Charles Wednesday night still fresh in their minds, 300 men besieged the boarding house when the fire started, breaking windows and fighting to gain admittance in order to rescue the youngsters. The men in charge of the school led the boys to safety in an orderly manner, however, and no one was injured.

The boys, all between the ages of five and twelve, were still in their night attire when taken out of the school. They were housed in a nearby building.

The school was controlled by the Good Shepherd sisters who had charge of the Hospice St. Charles. Fifty lives were lost when the orphan asylum, was burned to the ground on Wednesday night.

A sixty-mile gale increased the danger in last night's fire. The boarding school was in ruins by midnight.

In a building opposite the school were housed more than 200 children who had been saved from Wednesday night's fire. This building burst into flames at eleven o'clock, but the children were removed in time by devoted sisters of the Good Shepherd.

M'ADOO SUGGESTS LOS ANGELES MEET

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 17.—Reiterating that he was definitely out of politics, William Gibbs McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury and twice aspirant for the Democratic presidential nomination, today voiced his choice of Los Angeles for the 1928 Democratic national convention.

"Just reaffirm the statement in my open letter of last September in which I definitely took myself out of politics," he told newspaper men. "Say that I do not care to discuss the political situation in any way, either national or state, either Democratic or Republican. I am out of politics and looking after my law business."

VELMA WEST WILL SPEND HOLIDAYS IN JAIL

PAINESVILLE, O., Dec. 17.—Velma West, youthful pleasure-loving girl, who has been sentenced to her husband, Thomas Edward West, will spend the gay holiday season behind jail bars, it was indicated today.

Attorneys for the 21 year old blonde, who is alleged to have beaten her husband to death at their Perry, Ohio home, five miles east of here, on December 6, because he objected to her desire to attend a bridge party in Cleveland, have apparently abandoned proposed habeas corpus proceedings to obtain their fair client's release on bond, pending action of the Lake County Grand Jury.

Prosecuting Attorney Seth Paulin today stated that it would probably take two days for the grand jury to consider evidence in the case. He predicted a first degree murder indictment.

With the grand jury convening on January 9, it is expected Mrs. West will go to trial during the last week of January or the first week in February.

TWO TOSSED FROM AIR; ONE LIVES TO TELL STORY

Airport Manager Tossed From Cockpit Catches Wing And Crawls To Safety High In Air—Friend Falls To Death

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 17.—Richard R. Fellers, manager of the Martinsburg, W. Va., airport, was pitched bodily from the cockpit of a careening airplane several thousand feet above the Blue Ridge and lived to tell about it today.

Phineas H. Stephens of Newmarket, Va., wealthy engineer and grandson of Alexander Stephens, vice president of the confederacy, also was thrown out of the plane. His body hurtled through the air to crash lifeless and broken on the rocky slopes of Nelson County.

The airplane in which Fellers and Stephens were passengers was piloted by Charles A. Masson of the Maryland National Guard. Masson said the plane was caught in the vortex of what he described as a "cyclonic disturbance" and got out of control. The force of the air current was so violent that both passengers were pitched out. Stephens was thrown clear, Fellers was not.

Stephens and Fellers had been surveying the Shenandoah valley for airport locations and were en route to Richmond to report to Governor Byrd.

REMUS, LAWYER, IS BATTLING TO SAVE REMUS, DEFENDANT

Questions Alienist To Prove He Was Insane At Time

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 17.—Wearing a sprig of Christmas holly in the lapel of his coat and exuding optimism—whether he feels that way or not—George Remus, murder-defendant, is battling through the closing days of his fight to free himself with the detachment of a lawyer trying to save a client.

Gone is the shadow of the electric chair as Remus goes into action these final days of the long trial. Gone is the thought that he is a prisoner at the bar. He is now George Remus, the lawyer, defending one George Remus, charged by the state of Ohio with first degree murder for the shooting of his wife.

He has now turned to cross-examination. For the first time he is doing it himself. A sagacious lawyer before he turned bootlegger de luxe, Remus is engaged in trying to show the jury through his cross-examination of Dr. Edward Armitage Baber, one of the three alienists appointed by the court to observe the defendant, that he was insane when he fired the fatal shot into his wife's body.

Paradoxical as it may seem Remus, in the manner of a quite sane lawyer, is endeavoring to prove he was insane—"transitorily" insane—at the moment he pulled the trigger. That is Remus' sole defense.

Dr. Baber says Remus was sane the very moment he fired the shot, is sane now and was sane before the commission of the crime. Furthermore, the alienist declares Remus "knew right from wrong" when he was doing it and knew, too, that it was an offense against the laws of God and man.

Q.—(By Remus)—Doctor, medical scientists do not all agree as to what is insanity? A.—Not always.

Q.—And there is more literature written on this subject than on any other branch of medical science? A.—Yes.

Q.—Would you consider Kraft-Ebing an authority on insanity? A.—Yes, at the time he wrote his book, 1890 to 1900.

Kraft-Ebing is the German scientist who wrote a text book embracing a treatise on "transitory insanity." Remus has been studying it.

Q.—Have scientists so changed their opinions about insanity in the last twenty years, doctor, that you no longer consider him an authority? A.—Yes.

Thus, Remus is trying to prove his point, to show that his mind "exploded" just before he fired the fatal shot. If he does not break down the doctor's testimony in cross-examination, he is going to try to have the court permit him to propound to the alienists a thirty-three thousand word hypothetical question. It reviews the grievances which he claims, caused him to kill his wife, and he wants the alienists to give a one-word answer to the final question: "In your opinion was a man so afflicted sane or insane?"

REJECT ARBITRATION

REJECT ARBITRATION

BERLIN, Dec. 17.—German iron and steel industrialists today rejected the government arbitration award in the wage and hours dispute. Despite the rejection the government is expected to make the award officially binding to avert a lockout on January 1.

The report takes issue with certain American bankers who claim that German Government foreign loans take priority in payment over the Dawes plan obligations.

Gilbert contends that under the Versailles treaty, the Dawes plan reparations payments constitute a first mortgage upon everything Germany owns and must be paid before anything else.

The report points out that the state-owned railway system will need funds for maintenance and expansion, but suggest an internal loan.

ENGINE HITS TRUCK AT TRACK CROSSING ON VILLAGE STREET

Jamestown Crossing Is Accident Scene—Victim May Live

Fred Sanders, 40, Matthews, Ind., is in Espey Hospital, this city, with severe injuries received when the log truck he was driving was struck by an engine at the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad crossing, on Sycamore st., Jamestown, Saturday morning at 11:30 o'clock. The man is not expected to live.

Sanders was driving a large truck, loaded with logs, and his view of the railroad track was thought to have been obscured by a boxcar standing on a siding near the crossing. The engine that struck the auto was a "light" returning west after helping pull a train up the grade, east of Jamestown.

Homor H. Roberts, chairman of the Jamestown, employed on the B. & O. platform, near the crossing, saw Sanders approach the crossing but was unable to notify him of the engine's approach. The engine of the truck was struck and mangled and carried for some distance about the head and shoulders of the driver. Sanders was thrown from the auto and was unconscious.

Examination at the hospital showed Sanders to have a fractured rib, a double fracture of the right arm below the elbow, a fracture of the head, a fracture of the left hip. He has a chance for recovery, hospital officials said.

Dr. F. W. Ogden, said Sanders called and gave Sanders a check-up. Sanders was unconscious for a time but regained consciousness enough to tell his name and address. He was rushed to the hospital in a Stewart and son ambulance.

Dr. Marshall Best and others, doctors at the Espey Hospital, determined early Saturday afternoon the extent of the man's injuries.

Sanders has been employed around Jamestown all winter for a lumber firm, making and loading logs. He is married and his wife lives in Matthews. Sanders has been rooming at a farm home east of Jamestown.

John Hoban, Dayton, was engineer of the locomotive.

In court yesterday counsel for Mrs. Kresge submitted affidavits and testimony alleging that Kresge was trailed from church to a "love nest" where he was found scantily clad in the company of Gladys Fish, a pretty young New Englander. It was also testified that during Miss Fish's absence from the apartment Kresge entertained sixteen-year-old girls there.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF PARKER GILBERT CREATE SENSATION

Germany Hears Plan With Mixed Feeling As To Result

BERLIN, Dec. 17.—The recommendations of S. Parker Gilbert, agent general for reparations payments that the sum which Germany must pay to the Allies be fixed at a definite figure and that the Dawes plan be modified if not abolished entirely created a profound sensation throughout Germany today.

Gilbert's report was called "the turning point in reparations policy" and a step toward revision of the Dawes plan.

The government already is considering the advisability of starting a movement to establish the definite amount which Germany must pay in reparations. In official circles there is a feeling that this part of the report was written with the sanction of Germany's creditors.

The friendly tone of the report caused prices to advance on the bourse.

Nationalist newspapers, however, call the recommendations a "doubtful gift," leaving the Dawes plan burden without the benefit of foreign currency.

Agent Gilbert again warned the German Government against extravagance and urged the utmost economy in public expenditures. In concluding his report Agent Gilbert said that the experiences of the past few years have shown that the reparations problem cannot be solved until Germany is given a specific sum to pay on her own responsibility without outside interference.

The report takes issue with certain American bankers who claim that German Government foreign loans take priority in payment over the Dawes plan obligations.

Gilbert contends that under the Versailles treaty, the Dawes plan reparations payments constitute a first mortgage upon everything Germany owns and must be paid before anything else.

The report points out that the state-owned railway system will need funds for maintenance and expansion, but suggest an internal loan.

She found both without the slightest trouble. In fact, her leap from poverty and obscurity to national popularity was nothing less than sensational.

Her type of beauty is not strictly French—it's cosmopolitan, wherefore American magnates are sure she'll exercise her appeal on United States audiences. She has had a number of offers, and it's only a question of time before she sets sail for this country.

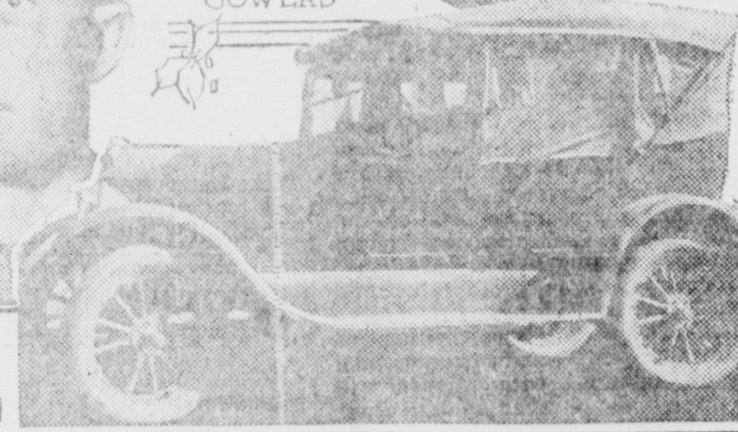

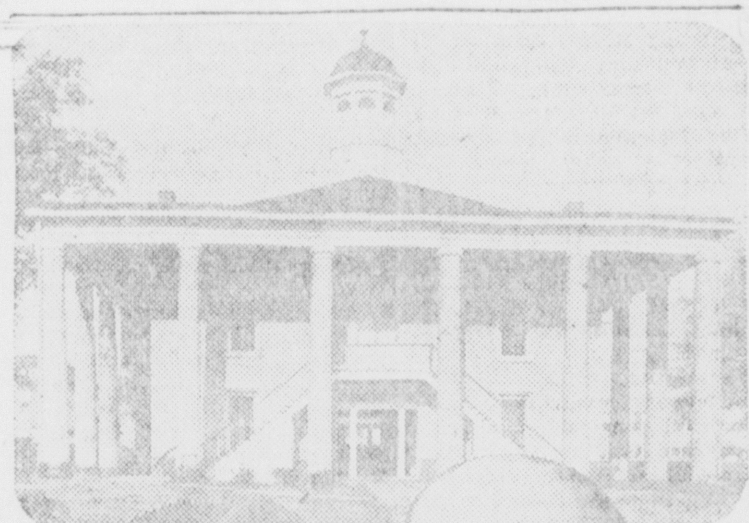

Bad starts, the bane of all followers of the turf, will be reduced to the minimum this year at Tijuana, for a new starting invention, conceived by Marshall Cassidy, official starter at the Mexican oval, has been installed at the head of the three-quarter chute. ## SEAL BOOTHS OPEN; STORE HELPS FUND

Mrs. H. L. Sayre, in charge of a Christmas anti-tuberculosis seal booth at Sayre's drug store, decided so many people had already purchased seals that some special sales method would be needed to spur the sale.

That's the reason she conceived and put into execution the plan to aid the charity by giving a percentage of all money received from the sale of phonograph records at the store, to the seal fund.

Under this plan 10 per cent of the purchase price of all phonograph records sold in the store during the time the seal booth is in operation, will be turned over to the Christmas seal committee. Since the booth opened Saturday and seals will be on sale all next week, Mrs. Sayre believes this offer will swell the seal fund considerably.

Booths in charge of white uniformed women wearing red cross hair bands, opened Saturday in the following other places: Hutchison and Gibney's, Jobe Bros., Sohn's drug store, Postoffice, Xenia National Bank and Bijou Theater.

"LINDY" CAN ALSO FLY OTHER PLANES

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 17.—Aside from the spirit of St. Louis, which is his trusty and sentimental partner, all airplanes look alike to Col. Lindbergh. He demonstrated this by the ease with which he skyrocketed over Mexico City in a Mexican army plane.

"He is perfect," declared a Mexican aviation major who had watched Lindbergh fly over the city. "Nobody can touch him."

The flight has further endeared Lindbergh to the residents of this city for he gave them such a thrill as they had never witnessed before with his dips, loops and whirls high in the air.

This was not the first time "Lindy" showed his expertness with strange planes. While in Europe he used both British and French army planes without previous tests.

East End News

MRS. JAMES HARRIS Correspondent TEL. 91-R

East End will conduct the sale of Christmas Seals at the Hawkins Drug Store, beginning Monday, December 19. Mrs. Emma Robinson of St. John's A. M. E. Church will open the sale Monday. The sale on successive days will be in charge of Miss Josephine Howe, Miss L. J. Payne, Mrs. Sanford, Mrs. Lucy Bramlette and Mrs. W. C. Allen, representing the Third Baptist, Zion, Christian, First A. M. E. and Middle Run Baptist Churches.

Competition is keen as to who will sell the most seals. Mrs. A. J. Love, chairman for the East End, reports the most successful seal sale ever held.

It is hoped that everyone interested in the Social Service League and the custom of singing carols in the streets to celebrate the Christmas season will have a candle or candles burning in his window. This will be a signal to the children singing outside that the people inside are waiting to hear the carols, to welcome the children and make some contribution. Please explain the custom to all your friends and ask them not to forget their candles.

The carol singers will go out Monday, December 19 at 6 p. m., unless it is stormy or icy on Tuesday, December 20 at 6 p. m. If the weather has prevented going Monday, Tuesday evening also, the bands will go out whenever they can arrange to do so.

The children are asked to report to the leaders for the section in which they live as scheduled below.

PROFESSIONAL FIRE BUGS

With the sentencing in November of the band of crooked merchants and professional firebugs that confessed to setting fire to a large warehouse in New York City, one of the most spectacular arson cases in the country has just been satisfactorily closed.

Judge Goddard, in the United States District court, meted out sentences of six and eight years in Atlanta Federal Prison, with a corresponding heavy fine to the principals responsible for robbing the insurance companies of large sums of money in arson fires. All of those guilty threw themselves upon the mercy of the court.

Judge Goddard, speaking to United States Attorney Tuttle after the sentence had been imposed, said:

"Mr. Tuttle, it is quite proper for the court to state that through the very efficient handling of this case by yourself and your assistants and the gentlemen who have been associated with you here, the Fire Department of the City of New York, the Fire Commissioner and the Fire Marshal, you have succeeded without any trial, in ridding this community of men who are a real menace to life and property of this city."

Similar good work should be encouraged. Make this country too "hot" to hold an arsonist. He is one of the lowest criminals in the list and deserves no public sympathy.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

The Christmas spirit tends to draw out the best in every one whom it inoculates. During the holiday season even the intolerant seem to find a measure of respect for the opinions of others; hearts are opened in an impulse of giving; friendliness is more in evidence; old dissensions and disagreements are forgotten.

It is obvious, from the widespread influence of the subtle thing which we call the Christmas spirit, that it must have a source far deeper than the human mind. In other words only in man's divine nature can there be a source deep enough and comprehensive enough to send forth an influence that touches so many people in such varied ways. It must come from that part of us which is so little recognized, the real spirit of man.

GAINING FINANCIAL INDEPENDENCE

"Financial independence is within the age of almost all of us," declares J. M. Campbell in the January issue of "The New Age Illustrated." "Good health," he says, "industry, a little good luck, a fair amount of common sense—you need nothing more."

Here are Mr. Campbell's rules for attaining financial independence:

Start a savings account, no matter how small it may be.

Deposit at weekly or monthly intervals at least 10 per cent of your earnings.

When you have a balance of, say, $750, ask the cashier of the bank of which you are a customer, to buy for you a gilt-edged $1,000 bond. Pay him $300 on account and give him a note for the balance. Reduce this by monthly payments, as also by the interest the bond pays twice a year.

When you have paid for the bond referred to in the preceding paragraph, buy another, using the bond you have paid for as collateral.

RESPECT FOR YOURSELF

Although every community is afflicted with a number of citizens so conceited that they are next to unendurable, the fact remains that one of the commonest weaknesses of the average man is his lack of respect for himself. The master foe of a reasonable success in life is lack of self-respect.

When you arrive at the conclusion that you ARE somebody, that you have an important job to do, that your judgment is as likely to be right as the next man's and that you have a right to the expression of your opinion, you have made a long step up. When you have come to RESPECT yourself you have started somewhere.

There is nothing better in life than the feeling of independence, the feeling that you are too valuable to be thrown into the street, the feeling that you are needed—and the feeling that you have the courage to use your own judgment.

SMOKE

We become so used to certain bad conditions of living that we do little about them. In fact, we think little about them. That is dangerous. For example, we have all heard so much about the "smoke nuisance" in the last twenty years that there is no kick left in the complaint. We just accept the smoke nuisance. And therein we are weak-minded. New York, which is considered a very bright and clean city, loses 31 per cent of its available sunlight because of a pall of smoke. Many other cities are vastly worse than New York. There is plenty of ingenuity among men to bring something to pass that would cure this situation, but we have accepted the evil.

Smoke in cities is not merely a matter of dirt and depression. The sun is a great healer of human ills. We need the rays of the sun and we are deprived of them, needlessly, by smoke. A smarter generation, coming after us, will not tolerate smoke.

TOOLS OF DEATH

Scientists say nitroglycerin may soon be used as fuel for naval torpedoes, instead of super-heated compressed air. Nitroglycerin would more than double the motive power of torpedoes. Too bad so many of the good brains of the country are engaged in devising tools of war and death. What results we might hope for if the best brains of America might be drafted to work on plans for international peace!

THE UNKNOWN QUALITY

Science keeps maintaining it can measure human intelligence. We still hear that a boy's future can be predicted when he is 12 years old. Good enough in theory—and very interesting. But it simply does not work out—not always. There is something unmeasured and unknown in every boy and girl. It is unpredictable. The best we can do is to give the youngster the best possible home and the best place to play and the best place to work. And all of these things are up to elders.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Panorama of the Metropolis at 3 o'clock in the morning:

All orderly speakeries and night clubs are turning out the lights and carrying out the customers in pursuance with the curfew ordinance. There are approximately three hundred lawabiding places. Numbers of irritated suburbanites are chartering taxis, the last Westchester train having left Harlem at 2:58. The Luxor baths reach their peak of activity, with numbers of red-nosed gentlemen taking to the Turkish and Russian baths. In the darkened canopy of the Liberty theatre, two derbies men match pennies idly. A good Republican, not only fried, but burnt, loudly informs Wets Forty-ninth street "Coolidge is gonna win in 1927. Unless you and I, a powerful person, armed with a revolver, refrain from asking one of the convivial group of hackmen to take you to Brooklyn. The well-dressed vendor of roses is bestowing unsold flowers on a casual feminine acquaintance. A horse cab clatters up Fifth avenue with a young man snoring comfortably under a top hat, in the rear. Beware of the thundering trucks, laden with tabloid last editions. The second assistant music critic of a prominent daily sits moodily behind a Western Union typewriter, mentally composing his letter of resignation, as is his habit. He has attended eight concerts and one private musicale, the day before. Childs Fifth avenue and Ruben's Madison avenue restaurants are very crowded. It is not advisable to eat in a lunch wagon, this being the hour when the floors and counters are swabbed off with ammonia. Early-starting milk wagons give those abroad at this hour the feeling of being seasoned routes. Editions of every morning paper, including the Times are now on sale. And the evening papers will go to press in a few hours. The old gent with the coffee stained mustache is still standing on a Broadway street, croaking to himself and holding out his ten-cent inflated rubber devil. A motor cop lopez up Fifth avenue in the wake of an unsuspecting roadster, which is in something of a hurry. Walking about at this hour is a ghostly, lonely occupation. So is sitting in Grand Central, waiting for a train. If you are still reveling, you begin to feel conscience stricken. To all appearances New York is now as lifeless as Poughkeepsie and it is much better to be home in bed. . . . as I am as I write this.

The current whimsy has it: Early to bed and early to rise and you'll never be Mayor of New York. To illustrate, included in Greenwich Village there is an organization, a very old and celebrated corps known as a Greenwich Village Hound Guards. Every year they gather in costumes, burlesquing celebrities and notoriety, and stage a swell parade. As the honorable James Walker is a native villager, the Hound Guards wound up their parade last Thanksgiving in front of the Mayor's door. And they sung to him, and awaited an appearance. But the Mayor did not show himself. However they were spread about that he was watching, garbed in pajamas, from behind the curtains of an upstairs window. At nine o'clock in the morning, as one of the celebrators remarked, the Mayor is just starting to get a good night's rest.

There are methods that are used for the cure of the alcohol habit, but the patient has to be in a hospital, under constant supervision. I think they are successful if the patient has enough character to keep from temptation after the desire has been eradicated. For your part, all you can do is to see that he has the right surroundings, as far as you can, and give him a non-stimulating diet. I think a vegetarian diet would be best, with no meat, fish or eggs. The protein should be supplied by liberal amounts of milk and cheese, nuts and legumes. Give him at least two pounds of fruits and vegetables a day, so that he will have good elimination without taking any physics, and will get plenty of vitamins and mineral elements.

If you do not know the physicians in your locality who would be able to give him treatment, won't you ring up your County Medical Society and ask them to tell you?

ANOTHER CASE WHERE THE OLD ADAGE DOESN'T WORK

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

WHAT SHALL THEY DO?

If a girl has two admirers who are brothers, had she better give both up rather than risk making trouble between them? This, in substance, is the problem of my first correspondent today.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a girl 18 years old and in junior high school. I have a boy friend of whom I am very fond. He seems very fond of me. He has a brother near my own age of whom I am fond, and he is also fond of me. What shall I do, quit the older brother and go with the younger, or what?"

Why not be friends with them both, as long as you are fond of them? Unless, of course, it is making trouble and then you will have to choose.

How can a girl find out if a man loves her unless he tells her so? I do like to help my readers, if possible, but how can I, who do not see these young men, tell whether or not they love the girls?

"Dear Virginia Lee: Two weeks ago I met a fellow with whom I fell in love. I have seen him only once since. He has asked me for dates and I consented. Now, Mrs. Lee, what I want to know is, how can I find out if he loves me?"

"Rosy Checks." The words and actions are the only way I know of to tell, my dear. He wouldn't ask you for your company unless he liked you, would he?

Alcohol Habit

It was not in my articles that your friend saw a cure for the alcohol habit, Mrs. B. I regret deeply that there is nothing that I could write on that that would help in the least.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES F. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Executive departments and sub-departments, government bureaus and boards and commissions, all sorts of federal offices and institutions are having their annual hemorrhage of reports just now, to congress—either directly, or through whatever intervening functionaries, or groups of same, may happen to stand between them and the legislative body.

There's a regular library of this stuff every year about this time. The president starts it with his message, which is a report, in its way, with recommendations. The others compiling right in afterward, to the tune of twenty or thirty, some of them good-sized volumes.

Occasionally there's one with good reading in it—even sensational. The trouble is, they're bunched too much. To wade through the entire mass is a hopeless undertaking, so the whole thing usually gets unread except by a few specialists.

The move to abolish about fifteen of the house of representatives standing committees has developed an amount of ill feeling on Capitol Hill out of all proportion to what anybody would imagine possible without an understanding of the reasons responsible for it.

For one thing, a committee chairmanship carries a certain amount of importance with it. The committee may not amount to much, but the chairman always is in a position to refer to himself as head of such-and-such a committee, and visiting constituents are impressed by it—the chairman sees to it that they are, when he tells 'em about it and explains how busy it keeps him—though a member of one committee told congress last winter that it was five years since his outfit had had a meeting. But aside from that, a committee chairman has an extra office and the committee has a secretary, who really is the chairman's personal secretary—unless it's an exceedingly important committee, which makes its secretary hustle.

Now, an extra office is a consideration to a representative. It doesn't matter so much to a senator. He has two anyway, and some have three, but representatives have only one apiece—except chairmen.

Here then, we have some fifteen chairmen who are liable to be tossed out into the cold world if their committees are abolished. They're rather influential congressmen, too, or they wouldn't be chairmen. They're not of prime importance, or they'd be chairmen of bigger committees, but they're above the average.

There are 61 standing committees in the house of representatives and only 81 in the senate, which may or may not suggest that the former body has more than are absolutely necessary.

The house, for instance, has a "committee on expenditures" by each of the executive departments—state, war, navy and so on. There are ten, at a clutter. Congressman Tilson, house majority floor leader, can't see why one "auditing committee" wouldn't do just as well for all of them. It would be harder work, among other things.

A couple of other house committees it's proposed to abolish are these:

The woman's suffrage committee.

The committee on the alcoholic liquor traffic.

The argument is that woman have the vote already and that there hasn't been any alcoholic liquor traffic since prohibition.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MRS. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

oil, you will find it has a tendency to "yellow" the skin slightly, in which case it is advisable to use a bleaching medium to counteract the effect. Lemon juice and water in a three-to-one proportion makes a good bleach, or you can get one of the bleaching creams on the market. You might substitute for your regular cleansing cream one that is also a bleach.

Work well down on your shoulders when you give attention to your neck. Don't try to massage around the edges of a negligee. Remove everything, even straps, from your shoulders, and go about the job in a workmanlike manner. Personally, I like to pin a towel around my bust and leave everything above it bare for the work. You can use a stroke down on your throat and around the shoulders, but directly under the chin and just for your regular cleansing cream one that is also a bleach.

Work well down on your shoulders when you give attention to your neck. Don't try to massage around the edges of a negligee. Remove everything, even straps, from your shoulders, and go about the job in a workmanlike manner. Personally, I like to pin a towel around my bust and leave everything above it bare for the work. ## SPRING HILL TEAMS WIN TWO VICTORIES WHEN LEAGUE OPENS

Spring Hill fourth and sixth grades and McKinley 5A emerged victorious in the opening games in the Intra-City Grade School Basketball League Saturday morning at Central High School gym.

Spring Hill 4 defeated McKinley 4A by a count of 9 to 3; Spring Hill 6 walloped McKinley 6A by the overwhelming score of 24 to 1, while McKinley 5A downed Spring Hill fifth graders 7 to 6.

Spring Hill fourth grade outplayed its opponents from start to finish. Huston looked good for the winners, scoring five of his team's nine points. Jones and Creamer starred for McKinley.

The fifth grade contest proved to be the most interesting of the opening round. McKinley 5A managed to nose out a victory. Both teams fought furiously but Spring Hill was outplayed by a slight margin. Latimer was outstanding in the McKinley lineup, scoring five points. Bath starred for the losers.

Spring Hill sixth graders had a walkaway in the final game, Mutterpaw registered sixteen of his team's points. Adair played a fine game for McKinley.

McKinley 4B, 5B and 6B drew byes the first round.

PULLEY SHOWS SPEED

visitors substituted their other team. At this point Coach Bost made several substitutions, apparently breaking up a winning combination.

Wesleyan ran wild in the second period, scoring nineteen points to two for Cedarville. The Delaware school led at the half 23 to 11.

The Wesleyan mentor switched teams again in the third quarter, but this fact made little difference, and in the final quarter when an entire new team was again thrown into the contest, the score continued to mount.

Gordon and Little were outstanding stars for Cedarville, the latter playing an exceptional defensive game. Hinzler was high point man of the contest for Wesleyan while Siegenthaler also played a whirlwind game.

Cedarville College girls defeated the Jaccamar girls, a newly-organized Springfield team, 23 to 10 in the preliminary.

ANNUAL ARMY-NAVY FOOTBALL CONTEST BELIEVED DOOMED

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—The annual Army-Navy football game, most colorful of all gridiron classics, has been lost unless the war and navy departments intervene. The threatened break in football relations between the two service schools became a reality today with the announcement of Major General Edwin B. Winans, superintendent of the United States Military Academy at West Point, that he had returned unopposed to the naval academy the contract calling for next year's game.

The break resulted from a difference in eligibility rules. The navy insists that no athlete be allowed to participate in varsity team competition for more than three years, and holds that football players who have played with college teams should not be eligible for the army eleven. Navy supporters point out that Harry Wilson, for example, was allowed to play another full term at West Point after starting at Penn State seven years ago.

In returning the contract unopposed to the navy, General Winans wrote: "While I regret that you should feel the proposed release of the army from the navy contract and the threatened scheduling of another school by the navy in army's place in 1928 to be necessary, I wish to assure you that under the circumstances the authorities of the military academy will not oppose your wishes in this respect."

CEDARVILLE HIGH CLAIMS TWO GAMES

Both the boys' and girls' basketball teams of Cedarville High School won their games against teams representing the O. S. and S. O. Home High School Friday night at the Home Armory in Xenia.

Cedarville girls topped their opponents 24 to 16 in the preliminary contest and the boys followed up with a thrilling 19 to 18 victory over the Home "male quintet."

Peters and Baker were outstanding players for Cedarville in the boys' game. Patton was the offensive star for the Home with the rest of the team also showing good form, although defeated.

East High School dropped a furiously-fought basketball game to the Dayton Hi Y quintet 23 to 28 at the East High gym Thursday night.

Not more than a few points separated the teams at any stage of the contest. Dayton led at the half-time 17 to 16.

Garrett was the star performer for East. Playing center he scored eight points.

The sixth grade team defeated the seventh graders 13 to 5 in a fast preliminary.

East High will be idle next week. Its next game is the Springfield Hi Y team here January 6.

BELLBROOK BEATS STIVERS RESERVES

Bellbrook High School's basketball team defeated Stivers High School Reserves, of Dayton, 23 to 22 after a nip and tuck battle on the former's floor Friday night.

Stivers was leading at the half 12 to 10 but could not hold its advantage and Bellbrook forged into the lead as the contest progressed. Barnett was the individual star for the winning team.

Bellbrook boys' and girls' teams will play O. S. and S. O. Home teams at the Home Armory in Xenia Wednesday night.

JUNIOR HIGH TEAM BEATS WAYNESVILLE TEAM IN CLOSE GAME

Central Junior High Basketball team won an exciting game from Waynesville Juniors 11 to 10 on the Waynesville floor Friday night.

The contest rapidly developed into a defensive tilt as the score indicated.

Waynesville used various tactics to draw Central's five-man defense out of position for close-in shots.

Ellis was Waynesville's outstanding star, scoring two field goals, but was forced to shoot from difficult angles. Consequently he missed a great many attempts.

For the visitors, King, running guard and captain, showed occasional flashes of clever dribbling and shooting, obtaining a field goal and two fouls. Creamer, diminutive forward, hit the net for two pretty fielders and kept the opposing defense in a worried frame of mind.

Ringer sank a neat field goal to start the contest and with the score tied at 10 to 10, made a foul shot that won the game. Thompson and Flory put up good defensive games for the winners.

Lineups:
Waynesville (10) Cen. Junior (11)
Turner, l. f. Ringer
Ellis, r. f. Creamer
Greene, c. Thompson
Miltonberger, l. g. Flory
Walker, r. g. King (C)

The Theater

The coming presentation of Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer" at Neth's Grand Theater, Columbus, marks the first appearance of this great screen special outside New York, Chicago and Philadelphia. It is in this picture adapted from the celebrated play, that the black-face comedian makes his screen debut and in it he is credited with having scored the greatest hit of his life.

There are reasons for the success of the film. The story it tells is not only full of appeal, but strikes a sympathetic chord that is not to be denied. Further, than this, it is the first motion picture in which the Vitaphone is used in all the musical sequences. Through it Jolson is seen and heard singing six melodies. One of these

"America has too many beautiful women," declared the French film actress, Ariette Marchal, on her return to Paris from the United States recently, "or at least there are too many in Hollywood."

Easier to hate than a conceivably male villain, the screen "bad woman" has invaded the films. ## READ THIS FIRST:

LILY LEXINGTON, spoiled only child of the CYRUS LEXINGTONS, is engaged to marry STALEY DRUMMOND, a rich bachelor. She throws him over a few weeks before the wedding to marry her mother's chauffeur, PAT FRANCE.

Pat has invented a new kind of piston ring that he and his friend, ROY JETTERSON, intend to put on the market. Pat goes to work in Roy's garage and later in the machine shop where he intends to make the piston ring. He works all day and late at night and Lily finds life very dull living with Pat's parents and his sister, FLORENCE, next door to their little grocery store. Finally she quarrels with Pat's mother and insists that they leave the house. So they rent a little furnished flat, where Lily learns to keep house in a hitherto-miss fashion, seeing neither Pat's family nor her own.

Then one day she meets her former chum, SUE CAIN, downtown and Sue invites her to a card party. Lily charges $300 worth of clothes at Angouleme's smart shop to wear to the party, and when she cannot pay for them, telephones Staley Drummond and he makes out a check to pay for them. Later Lily learns that Florence is bookkeeper at the shop and wonders if she has seen Staley's checks and knows that he paid for the clothes.

Pat sees the expensive garments and wonders where and how Lily got them. She tells him that she got them from Angouleme's on approval and must pay them $75 cash. Pat gives it to her, although he can't afford to, and with it Lily pays her debts at the neighborhood delicatessen and starts to trade at Pat's father's store. The France family, eager to be friendly, send along a wedding present of a washing machine, which is for Lily's idea of an ideal gift. However, she learns to use it. One day she has a letter from Staley, meets him, and he tells her he has decided she is not happy or she would not have to come to him in her trouble about the clothes. He sent her flowers one day after he has told her he means to have her eventually, and Roy Jettersson's wife, SADYE, coming to the flat, sees them. She picks up Staley's card, too.

(Now Go On With the Story)

CHAPTER XXXIX

"Mr. Staley Stanwood Drummond," said Sadye, reading from the card in high triumph. "What an aristocratic name, Lily!"

Lily gritted her teeth. . . . It made her perfectly furious to have Sadye see what was written on the card. And it always set her nerves on edge to hear Sadye call her "Lil." Coming from Sadye's lips, "Lil" sounded so common somehow or other. To Lily, at least.

"Lil, that's the men you were going to marry when you took up with Pat, isn't it?"

Lily nodded grimly. She could have slapped Sadye's face and turned her out of the flat at that moment with great pleasure.

"Hm," Sadye mused. "Well, he doesn't seem to get over his yen for you, does he? Her sharp little eyes took in the great bunch of pale pink roses once more. She seemed to be figuring how much they must have cost, in her own mind.

"If I were you, Lil, I certainly would send those roses right straight back to him," she said, nodding her head wisely. "I certainly would—I know Pat France, and I don't believe he'd want his wife to be getting presents from another man, even if it was just a bunch of flowers."

Lily thought guiltily of the bath room shelf, with all the beauty aids that Staley had sent her when she told him she had none. . . . What would Pat say if he knew that the very powder on her straight little nose was the gift of another man—and of Staley Drummond, in particular?

"You know, a married woman can't be too careful," Sadye was saying now. "It takes so little to make people talk."

"Oh, Sadye, keep quiet!" Lily was exasperated with her. "For heaven's sake, who's going to know whether Staley Drummond sends me flowers or not, unless I tell it—or unless you do!"

Sadye shook her head. "Not me! I'd never tell it—I'm no trouble maker," she said, turning the flashing rings around and around on her fingers. Sadye had lots of jewelry.

"Anything I've got to say I'll say right to your face," she went on, and then she said it:

"I don't know whether you make a business of seeing this man or not—she waves Staley's card in the air—but if you do, you're a very foolish girl. Pat worships the ground you walk on, and if he ever had any cause to doubt you, it would kill him, I think."

Lily deliberately took the card out of her fingers, tore it up, and threw the pieces down behind the gas logs in the grate.

"I can't keep a man from sending me flowers," she said, and then as she turned around from the mantel-piece a startling thought came to her. . . . Sadye knew more about herself and Staley Drummond than she was letting on! Something in Sadye's face told her so.

"Sadye," she said quickly, "has Florence France said anything to you about me lately?"

Sadye's pink face became more deeply pink, and she began to blink those sharp little eyes of hers.

"Well—" "Well, what?" asked Lily. Sadye looked embarrassed.

"Well, I've been hearing things," she admitted, and while she was speaking Lily remembered that Elizabeth Ertz had seen her getting out of Staley's car that first night on Boyle St., in front of the restaurant. . . . and of course, she had told Sadye!

It came to Lily that she would have to make a clean breast of the whole story—or at least what would seem like the whole story to Sadye.

"Sadye, I'm going to tell you something," she began. "I have seen Staley Drummond since I married Pat—but not until very lately. It never would have turned out this way except that I had to have some new clothes and I charged them to my father—and then when my family refused to let me charge them, there was no one for me to go to but Staley, so I did and that was the end of it."

"Well, I took Elizabeth Ertz home if you want to know," he answered.

Sadye gave her a narrow look. "Was that the end of it?" she asked, getting up and pulling on a pair of too-tight kid gloves. "Are you sure?"

Lily flushed—not a bright scarlet flush like Sadye's, but a soft, willow-pink, that died away along her cheek, leaving her dead white.

"I said that was the end of it," she snapped, and got up from her chair to let Sadye know that, so far as she was concerned, this was the end of the visit, too.

"You and Pat will surely come for supper tomorrow night, then?" asked Sadye, taking the hint and getting up. "I'm going to have a nice little crowd in for Welsh rarebit and beer, and then we're going to play a lot of wonderful new phonograph records we have—not jazz, you know but classical stuff. And then I wouldn't be surprised if Pat and Roy got out their saxophones."

"Saxophones!" Lily was astounded. "You don't mean to say that Pat France plays a saxophone? Why, he's never mentioned 'saxophone' to me."

Sadye nodded. "Yes, they practice in the garage mostly," she said, and Lily smiled tenderly to herself. It made Pat seem very absurd and boyish and lovable to her—the thought that he had a saxophone, played it and loved it, but was ashamed of it.

"But sometimes they play at our house," Sadye added. "When Elizabeth Ertz is there to help them out on the piano."

Instantly Lily froze. Elizabeth Ertz! The very sound of her name was hateful to her! She could just picture her, sitting at the piano in Sadye's house, mooning over the keys and making baby eyes at Pat as they played together!

"Is Elizabeth Ertz going to be at your house tomorrow night, Sadye?" she asked with surface sweetness, and Sadye said she was.

"Then I won't be—and neither will Pat!" Lily said firmly to herself, as she watched Sadye waddle down the front walk and climb into her car a moment later.

All her love for Pat—all her jealousy—came surging up into her heart as she stood there behind the net curtains of her little living room and the thought of The Ertz and Pat and the hours they had spent together learning music—all sentimental, mushy music all about "June" and "moon" and "spoon" no doubt, too!

"And then Sadye Jettersson has the cheek to ask her to a party with me and Pat!" she said to herself. "And the brass to tell me I ought not to see Staley when she brings The Ertz and Pat together every time she can!"

She just wished she had thought of that while Sadye was in the house and "bawled" her out for it good and proper! She certainly did!

That night when Pat came home at ten o'clock, tired and shabby and none too clean after a day in the shop and the garage, she was very loving and sweet to him. She kissed him and clung to him, patting him with her hands.

"Darling," she said, "I never know how much I love you until I'm jealous of you."

"Jealous?" asked Pat, too tired to talk about jealousy or love or anything else. He sank into a chair and began to unlace his shoes, yawning as he did it.

"Have you anything to eat in the house?" he asked wearily. "I didn't stop for supper tonight. . . . Just anything will do."

Hurt, Lily went out into the kitchen and made him a sandwich out of bread and cold bacon left over from breakfast. It was not a very good sandwich, but Pat ate it hungrily.

"Well, I think I'll turn in," he said when he had finished it and wiped his hands on his handkerchief. Lily had forgotten to bring him a napkin.

He picked up his shoes and rose from his chair.

"Don't you want to know I'm jealous?" Lily asked him, coquettishly. He only grinned at her for answer, and took a little roll of bills from his pocket—his week's salary.

He counted out three $5 bills, and handed them to her. "Here's your expense money," he said. "Make it go as far as you can, will you? Another couple of months and this piston ring is going to be selling, I'm pretty sure. But in the meantime we'll have to go on living like a couple of Chinese coolies, honey."

Fifteen dollars. . . . Lily looked at the three bills when he was gone. Then her eyes lit to the great bunch of roses on the table.

I may be late, but he'll be over to get you tonight about six. It's all arranged."

Lily said nothing. "Go ahead and arrange all you want to!" she thought, glaring at his innocent back as he ate his breakfast in the tiny kitchen. "But I'm not going to that party!"

That night when Roy came for her she told him she couldn't go with him. But she offered no excuse, and she closed the door of the flat in his face while he was still talking.

When he was gone she sat down and waited for Pat to come home. She waited until nine o'clock. Then she went to bed, but she could not sleep.

She heard the clock in the sitting room strike ten and then eleven. Upon the stroke of twelve she heard him open the front door and she rushed in to him, holding her kimono tight around her. Her face was white with anger, and her eyes blazed at him.

"Well, this is a fine time to come home to me, after your evening's pleasure!" she said. "I thought you'd come home to me when you heard I was here. . . . Where have you been until this hour? Playing the saxophone with that Ertz creature?"

Pat shook his head. "No, I got there too late to play anything," he said. "But I took Elizabeth Ertz home, if you want to know. . . . I hope you won't mind. I couldn't very well escape. Roy asked me to, and it's only a couple of blocks."

Lily stared at him. She forgot that she had been driving and lurching with Staley Drummond, and that his roses were scenting the little room where she and Pat stood. She was frantic with jealousy.

POLICE SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA FORMED

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 17.—This city boasts of a musical organization not only unique but promising. It is the Toledo Police Symphony Orchestra.

Four years ago when Patrolman Charles W. Roth started the organization of which he was director, little was thought of its possibilities.

Toledoans today, however, are beginning to be proud of their police musicians. The orchestra has seventy-five regular players and twenty reserve players.

They have become accustomed to rigorous rehearsals during the four year's period. Concerts are free. As a result many music lovers of the city necessarily are relied upon to aid in the support of the organization. Players receive no salaries.

Pat knew about Sadye's Sunday night supper.

"I'll go straight from the garage," he told Lily on Sunday morning. "I told Roy I'd stay there today—and

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDA H. McCLONE GIBSON LOVE

In many cities they are taking steps to abate the "making of love" on the highways and boulevards by young people in automobiles. The account of this reform says: "On almost every boulevard and shaded street you will find automobiles drawn up to the side of the road with lights out and containing one or more couples 'making love.'"

Why not call it by its right name, gentlemen? These young people are not making love, but making lust.

Why not start a drive to teach the young man and woman the difference between the two words. Why degrade love by applying it to those things which only mean lust?

It is true that love is everywhere, and it is a very sacred and beautiful passion, but it loves light rather than darkness, and the love which really makes this old world go 'round is very different from the 'round in which the word is applied.

We see love in the budding flower and in the stars of heaven; through the whisperings of tradition and the thunders of history we hear it, and death in life has come when we cannot feel it.

Every day love clasps the mother's breast with baby fingers; love touches the cheek of youth with sweet caresses.

Love illumined the rugged face of Lincoln as he affixed his name to the paper that liberated four million souls from bonds of slavery.

Nathan Hale went to a disgraceful death while in love's ecstasy he cried:

"Had I a hundred lives I would gladly give them for my country."

In a vision, love came to the little peasant mortal of Doremy, and straightway she followed with steps that did not falter—whether it led to the victor's crown at Orleans or the burning stake at Rheims.

Love touched the pen of Shakespeare and set the whole world of poetic fancy aflame with rose and gold.
